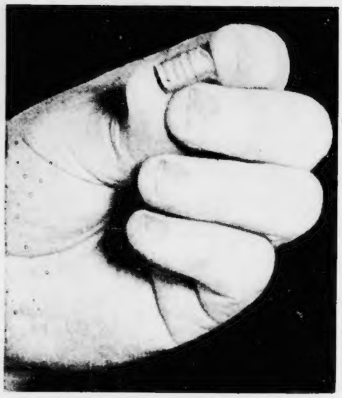
Holds His Fate



Here is the bullet which Norfolk prison physicians today extracted from the neck of Edward P. Simpson, named killer of Patrolman Henry Bell. Identified by Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics expert, as having been fired from the gun of Patrolman Lawrence Murphy, the bullet may help send Simpson to the electric chair.

British Act On 'Pirate Subs'

Action Taken After Sinking of Tanker

London, Sept. 2 (INS)—Outraged by the depredations of "pirate" submarines, Great Britain today decided to reinforce her naval forces in the Mediterranean.

The decision was reached at an emergency cabinet meeting.

While the cabinet was in session word was flashed to London that the British tanker Woodford had been sunk by a "mystery submarine" off the coast of Spain, resulting in the death of the second engineer and the wounding of six members of the crew.

A short while before the Woodford sinking, the British destroyer Havock had been attacked by a submarine in the same area.

ACTION DEMANDED

With press and public demanding drastic action against the "mad dog" submersibles of the Mediterranean, members of the cabinet decided to reinforce the British destroyer strength in the western sector of Britain's empire "life line."

The second engineer was killed and six members of the crew wounded when the 6987-ton tanker Woodford was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning.

Boy Hurt, Blame Loose Truck Chain

A length of chain, dangling from the tailboard of a truck was responsible, police said, for injuries suffered today by Gerard Casey, messenger boy, 16, of Grant street, Dorchester.

The boy was tumbled from his bicycle on Dorchester street, near Woodward street, South Boston, when the flying chain fell across the handlebars.

Reindeer Back to Indians

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed today a bill appropriating $2,000,000 to restore Alaskan reindeer herds to the Eskimos and Indians. The bill makes it illegal for whites to operate herds.

Bandaged shoulder of Edward P. Simpson, shown here, is where bullet taken from his neck today at Norfolk prison colony entered. Police said the bullet has been identified as coming from the gun of Patrolman Lawrence Murphy, wounded the night of the shooting.

Indict 3 Boston Men in Mail Fraud

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Albert Lincoln Nelich and Herbert E. Dennison, lawyers, and James T. Swan, a certified public accountant, all of Boston, were named today in a 20-count indictment charging conspiracy and use of the mails to defraud. The indictment was handed up to Federal Judge John W. Clancy.

Eighteen other persons were named in the indictment.

Age 'No Barrier' For Car Insurance

New Bedford, Sept. 2 (AP)—The state board of appeals on motor vehicle policies ruled today that old age is no barrier to operation of an automobile when it ordered accident insurance issued to Benjamin Kirk, 83, of Somerset, for his 1921 model automobile.

Kirk, who has had a driver's license for 17 years, appealed to the board when accident insurance was refused him.

RIVERS SETS 'HURLEY DAY' FOR JAILS

Governor E. D. Rivers of Georgia today loosed a new blast of ridicule in the direction of Massachusetts and Governor Hurley.

Climaxing the interstate North-South controversy caused by Governor Hurley's refusal to extradite a Georgia chain-gang fugitive, Governor Rivers announced in Atlanta:

That four life-term murderers and two burglars serving chain gang sentences had based petitions for freedom on their willingness to reside in Massachusetts.

That a "spend-your-parole-on-Cape Cod" movement had been started among Georgia convicts.

That all Georgia penal institutions will celebrate an annual "Hurley Day" when fishcakes and Boston baked beans, "a la Hurley," will be served the prisoners and applications for the parole of those wishing to be exiled to Massachusetts will be heard.

HURLEY SILENT

In the face of this new attack, Governor Hurley maintained the silence with which he yesterday greeted Governor Rivers' parole of Fleming "Sing" Willis, 30-year-old Negro convict, given his freedom on condition that he take up residence in Massachusetts.

Willis, Scripture-quoting Sunday school teacher and barber who was

Morgenthau Flies East in Haste

San Francisco, Sept. 2 (INS)—On a mysterious hurry trip to Washington, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today was met by a coast guard cutter off quarantine as the liner Lurline arrived from Honolulu.

The secretary was rushed to San Francisco airport, where he boarded a Coast Guard plane.

The purpose of Morgenthau's hurried eastward trip was not known. Late yesterday he wirelessed Matson Navigation Company headquarters here that he would grant a press interview upon docking of the Lurline.

2D GIRL DYING AFTER 'LUNG' WINS RACE

BULLETIN

Denver, Col. Sept 2 (INS)—Despite a dramatic race by air and rail to save Maybelle Outcalt, 15, stricken with infantile paralysis, death appeared close to victory late today. Shortly after noon physicians announced her condition as "extremely grave."

Denver, Sept 2 (INS)—Through the air and over transcontinental rails, two artificial "lungs" were sped here today, climaxing a dramatic struggle to save the lives of two girls stricken with infantile paralysis.

Shirley Roemer, 2½ years old, one of the victims, was placed in a 700-pound respirator which arrived here at 8:30 a. m. on the Burlington Railroad's famous streamliner, the Zephyr.

At the depot the huge machine was loaded on a fire truck and rushed through the streets with a police motorcycle escort clearing the way.

It was immediately set up in the Steele Memorial hospital and the little girl was shifted from a "wooden lung" which had been landed at the airport from a Toronto, Ont. plane earlier in the day.

FATAL DECISION

Arrival of the machine relieved doctors from being forced to make what might have been a fatal decision. They would have had to keep either Shirley or Maybelle Outcalt, 15, the other victim, continuously in the single respirator available should both have taken a turn for the worse.

Such a choice, it was believed, would have resulted in the death of one of the girls.

The "iron lung" was carried to the hospital in record time. Only

Mayor Questions Self, Probe Ends

In the unusual picture of a man talking to himself, Mayor Mansfield asked himself questions and then answered them today at the Finance Commission probe into Coleman Hill Construction Company dealings with the city.

Following the mayor's unique way of testifying, the hearings were ended at 12:35 after an announcement.

The self-questioning and answering brought a charge from the mayor, seated at the witness table, that the use of these figures and the suppression of evidence were Finance Commission principal weapons.

It was for that reason, he testified in reply to one of his own questions, that he had concerned himself with the hearing—that and

Japan Bombs Land Near U. S. Marines

BULLETINS

Shanghai, Sept. 3 (Friday) (AP)—An unconfirmed report early today said Chinese military airplanes had flown to Japan and bombed Kagoshima, southernmost port of importance in Japan proper.

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (INS)—Clear warning that Japan will halt and search the American steamer Wichita, bound from Baltimore to China with a cargo of airplanes, was voiced by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota today. Hirota said:

"It is not desired that ships of third parties should carry articles of war to China for specific use against Japan. Such action might necessitate inspection."

Shanghai, Sept. 3 (AP)—Japanese air squadrons dumped bombs on the northern borders of the International Settlement in a sunset air raid this evening, just missing the sand-bagged sectors defended by American marines.

Shrapnel fell about United States marine posts. The American lines were directly in the range of fire. The steel-helmeted marines were in imminent danger of serious casualties in case Japanese air bombers or naval gunners overshot their marks, the Clear Charwoman On Kidnap Charge

Attleboro, Sept. 2—On testimony of her 11-year-old boy, Mrs. Frances S. Fitzgerald, 30, of Cedar street, Roxbury, a charwoman, was cleared of a charge of kidnaping her own boy in district court here today.

"I want to live with my mother," John Rondino told Judge Ralph C. Estes.

The complaint was brought by Mrs. Fitzgerald's father-in-law, Natali Rondino, of Pratt street, Mansfield, who alleged that the boy was unlawfully taken from him by his mother.

BULLET TAKEN FROM KILLER IDENTIFIED

The bullet the law needs in its fight to send Edward P. Simpson to the electric chair for the slaying of Patrolman Henry Bell of Newton, was cut from the alleged killer's neck by surgeons in the Norfolk prison colony today.

Two hours after the bullet had been removed, Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state police ballistics expert, announced that an examination at his laboratory revealed that the bullet definitely came from the gun of Patrolmen Lawrence Murphy.

The identification, Van Amburgh said, was "perfect."

While the operation was being performed, Frances W. Frada, Cambridge "pick-up" girl and Simpson's alleged companion in crime, was held for trial in $100,000 bail in Newton district court.

The bail figure represented an increase of $50,000 in bonds previously asked. Judge W. Lloyd Allen made the ruling in the face of a plea made by Miss Frada's counsel that bail be reduced to $200.

Simpson was reported resting comfortably after the operation.

Earlier in the day Harold Amsafsky, counsel for Simpson, had revealed that temporary insanity would be the defense offered by the indicted man when he goes to trial on the first degree murder charge.

BAIL UP $50,000

The bail set for the Frada girl, while nominally the same as that under which she has been held since the night of the shooting in Watertown, was actually an increase of $50,000.

Judge Allen set the new bail at

$50,000 on a charge of acting as an accessory before the fact of armed assault and $50,000 as a material witness.

The full amount of $100,000 must be posted before the girl can obtain her release.

Previously, although held under the same amounts on each count, she could have gained freedom by the posting of $50,000 on the accessory charge, court attaches said. She would have been released in her own recognizance for appearance as a witness.

LOWER BOND ASKED

When Assistant District Attorney Jeannette C. Chisholm asked for a continuance of 10 days, the girl's counsel told the court he would not object, although ready to proceed if bail were lowered.

He argued that the girl would probably be a state witness and was entitled to lower bond.

In contrast to her last court appearance when she smiled and joked, the Frada girl appeared serious and on the verge of tears during the proceedings.

Denying the request, Judge Allen remarked:

"I don't expect to hold her forever. She is entitled to a trial shortly, but Patrolman Murphy (allegedly wounded by Simpson) is still very ill and we can't go on without him."

The judge declared he felt that the 10-day period asked by the state was reasonable and then set bail. The girl was remanded to the East Cambridge jail when she was unable to post the surety.

Meanwhile Simpson lolled in his cell, reading newspapers and smoking after his operation. A physicians' bulletin said the bullet was found imbedded in the sterno-cleido mastoid muscle just above the sterno-clavicular junction. The post-operative condition of the patient was declared to be "good."

LOCAL ANAESTHETIC

Ether was not used in the operation because of the condition of Simpson's left lung, said to have been punctured by the bullet. He was given a local anaesthetic.

Physicians said the accused killer's condition was "good."

"Make sure, doc, that you don't leave any money in there."

As the incision was being closed after removal of the bullet, Simpson remarked:

"Gee, I'd like to take a look at the slug. Now that you've got it, what are you going to do with it?"

He was allowed to sit up and inspect the piece of lead. Looking curiously at it, he laughed and made no comment. As he was wheeled from the room he spotted Attorney Aronofsky and asked cheerily:

"How are you, my good man?"

A few minutes before the operation, for which Simpson gave his written consent last night, Aronofsky asserted he believed the bullet could not be legally used by the state as possible evidence in the trial.

He told reporters:

"They can have custody of the bullet the same as they have custody of the body of Simpson, but in my opinion I don't think the bullet will be admissible as evidence no matter what it shows.

"NOT ADMISSIBLE"

"Certainly, if it wasn't fired from any police gun, the State wouldn't want any part of it, and if the State contends that it was fired from one of the officer's pistols, in my opinion, it would be forcing the defendant to testify against himself.

"Therefore, under his constitutional rights as a defendant, it would not be admissible in court."

Aronofsky revealed his defense when he declared:

"My client, Edward P. Simpson, is suffering, and has been suffering from delusions of persecution, which may be the basis for the defense.

"Since escaping from Charles street jail last April, Simpson has feared brutal treatment or possible death from the hands of police. He suffered from the delusion that they would maltreat him without giving him an opportunity to explain.

"If it appears that he was implicated in the shooting of Patrolman Bell there is no question but he was suffering from temporary insanity at the time of the shooting."

Announcing that he will be assisted in the case by his office associate, John Boyle, Aronofsky said he expected Simpson would go on trial for his life in October.

He declared no possible defense angle other than insanity would be overlooked.

Under the law, Simpson will be examined by alienists appointed by the court before any trial can take place.

Such an examination will be made under the Briggs law by Dr. Roy D. Halloran, superintendent of Metropolitan State Hospital, Waltham, and Dr. Henry M. Baker of Boston, appointed last night by Superintendent Maurice Winslow of the prison colony.

They will determine whether he was legally sane at the time of the shooting. In the examination, they will investigate the possibility of "dementia praecox," the delusions of persecution from which his attorney said he was suffering.

The case was marked by a clash between District Attorney Warren L. Bishop and Major Ralph W. Robart, chairman of the State Parole Board, when the latter issued a statement criticizing Bishop and his first assistant, William G. Andrews, for their request that the board rescind a parole revocation warrant issued for John J. Keating, held as a material witness.

Pointing out that such warrants are served after the disposition of any pending action, Robart termed the request unnecessary.

Under no condition would it be granted, he said, and after the Simpson case is closed Keating will be returned to State Prison to complete 11 years remaining of an 10 to 20-year sentence for armed robbery. He had been paroled after serving nine years.

"UNUSUAL PROCEDURE"

Robart declared:

"It is an unusual procedure for a prosecuting officer to appear before a parole board to ask us to rescind a warrant for a man we consider dangerous.

"Our job is to make Massachusetts a safe place in which to live. Any favors granted Keating could be handled within the jurisdiction of the district attorney."

The parole board head said Bishop and Andrew had made impassioned pleas for the rescinding of the warrant, even going so far as to say that they would "treat Keating very kindly over there."

BISHOP REPLIES

"I do not want to bicker or get into an argument with anybody over any angle of the Simpson case.

"I do not propose to allow anything or anybody to hamper the prosecution of the case.

"Anything I do is in the best interests of the prosecution of the Simpson case, which is of paramount importance.

"I want my witnesses in my control and where I can put my finger on them at a moment's notice.

PRENDIBLE TO CO-OPERATE

Meanwhile, William G. Prendible, clerk of the Suffolk Superior Court, issued a statement offering his co-operation in the investigation of Simpson's break from Charles street jail last April.

Meanwhile, authorities took steps to insure that the operation, for which Simpson gave his written consent last night, would result in the legal addition of evidence being piled up against the named killer of Patrolman Henry Bell.

Captain Van Amburg, who took possession of the bullet immediately after the operation, was requested by District Attorney Warren L. Bishop to witness the removal so that the ballistics authorities could testify that the bullet, said to have been fired by Patrolman Lawrence Murphy, was found in Simpson's body.

State police and Department of Correction agents today were scheduled to begin an active investigation of the escape from Charles street jail last April.

In response to an aroused civic indignation over charges that Simpson had received "inside help" in the break, the guard at his Norfolk cell was doubled.

Governor Hurley's offer to place at the disposal of the Boston City Council the full forces of the Correction and Public Safety departments was immediately accepted by Councilman George A. Murray, chairman of the prison committee probe.

REQUEST TO TIMILTY

This afternoon Police Commissioner Joseph Timilty received the following letter from Murray pursuant to the probe:

"On behalf of the city council committee on prison inspection I hereby request a copy of the police report relevant to the escape of Edward P. Simpson from the Charles street Jail on or about April 25, 1937.

"Also a report concerning the activities of your department in an effort to apprehend Simpson since his escape and any other information you may have available in reference to this matter."

The letter asked for a reply before the probe begins next Thursday.

FIRST ORDER SINCE 1935

Observers pointed out that the order was the first to send state police into Boston since 1935, when a vice probe was begun here after the murder of Joseph "Red" Sweeney in a night club.

In the meantime, the mysterious transfer of Simpson's commitment from Deer Island house of correction to the Charles street jail still remained inadequately explained.

In his Kennebunkport, Me., summer home, Judge John M. Gibbs who sentenced Simpson to Deer Island on a larceny charge last April, said that he could not "be positive about the case."

NATION DETESTS WAR, LEHMAN TELLS VETS

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York pointed to "more than 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada" today as an example to the world of peaceful international relations.

Thousands of delegates to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars came to their feet applauding as Lehman declared:

"America does not seek war. In the greatest majority, we hate war.

"The present picture of the world, with war raging in many parts, should be a challenge to every veteran.

"It is your duty to make war hated, abhorred and unwanted.

"You and other veterans who have sacrificed can make known to this and succeeding generations the horror of war—your knowledge gained through experience can make known the suffering and anguish of war.

"You have the right to ask that we be adequately prepared against ruthless, self-seeking nations.

"After preparedness, you have the right to ask that profits be taken out of war.

"Finally, and above all, you have the right to ask that the country pursue a path of peace."

LAMBERT HAD HURLEY MEET GOV. RIVERS

Although Governors Hurley of Massachusetts and E. D. Rivers of Georgia are tossing official language at each other in the matter of prisons ad prisoners, the Boston Evening American reveals today that the two executives have met and seemed to get along nicely in a personal way.

They were introduced, in fact, by John T. Lambert, associate publisher of this newspaper, when he was in Washington last Fall as publisher of the Washington Times.

It was at a cocktail party given by Mr. Lambert to the new governor of Georgia in the Pan-American Room of the capital's Mayflower Hotel and attended by about 60 persons, including a number of the nation's leaders.

Among these were J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal Bureau of Investigation, Vice-President John N. Garner, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Representative Samuel Rayburn, Democratic floor leader of the House, and Chairman March of the federal trade commission.

INVITED TO PARTY

Others included Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the Federal Tariff Commission, Donald Richberg, former NRA chairman, Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and similar dignitaries.

During the early part of the party, the host had occasion to talk with Governor Hurley (who was in Washington) over the telephone and invited him to join and [illegible] Governor Rivers meet some of these Washington leaders at the start of their gubernatorial terms.

The election of Rivers in Georgia had been welcome to the Roosevelt administration, because his predecessor, Eugene Talmadge, had been a bitter critic of the New Deal and had repeatedly charged the [illegible] with wastefulness and extravagance.

GOVERNORS MEET

Host Lambert introduced the two governors, two men newly placed at the helm of their states, two Democrats—two men who were anxious to make administration friends in the capital.

The governors' opposites in almost every sense, seemed to gravitate toward each other almost automatically then and they were together and convinced for about two of the three hours the party [illegible] lasted.

Hurley, the tall, [illegible] from Massachusetts, with a broad grin and hearty laugh, a gentle [illegible]

Rivers, short (hardly more than five feet six inches) thin, with the sharp [illegible] fighting eyes of a crusader and a face almost ascetic, dressed in [illegible] fashion with blue serge suit and black Ascot tie.

"But they got along like a couple of long lost brothers," said Associate Publisher Lambert today.

WARFARE UNPLEASANT

"They still must have in their minds the fact that they did meet face to face and they must be conducting this war with some feeling of personal reluctance."

After the party, Governor Rivers invited Host Lambert to Georgia, and when Mr. Lambert did go there, the governor invited the then Washington editor to address a joint session of the Legislature and he spoke for five or six minutes, informally.

During his introduction the governor told the legislators of how much the visitor had done for Georgia's governor on the latter's first visit to Washington.

In that appearance also Gov. Rivers wore the same carelessly pressed blue serge suit and his black ascot.

SPEAKS WITH SKILL

"Governor Rivers," said Mr Lambert, "is a forceful type of man. Hiss address to the Legislature, although he had manusfipt of abut 25 pages, was more of a tump speech than an address. He used the manuscript only as a guide.

"He spoke with the skill of a seasoned campaigner, to whom written theoric meant no a thing, but what caunted was that he put his points over strongly and he was applaundetl at the close. He had been himself a member of the Legislature, for years."

WPA Girl Workers To Wear 'Stripes'

Providence, R. I., Sept. 2—To save their own dresses from wearing out, women employed on Works Progress Administration projects throughout this state will be given blue dresses with grey stripes, the Boston Evening American learned today.

Works Progress Administrator Farrell D. Coyle of Rhode Island, in issuing the new regulations today, said the women will wear these dresses on their way to and back from the projects and while working.

As soon as the announcement was made public, it was learned, many of the 800 women employed in Providence objected on the grounds the dresses look like prison garb, particularly because of the gray stripes.

Coyle said the matter was "purely a Rhode Island proposition."

The dresses are now being made at the Palace street schoolhouse by relief workers and will be issued as soon as they are finished.

convicted in a lottery case, was supposedly carrying out his announced intention of "moseying raht on up thah to Massachusetts"—via the hitch-hike route—but there was no report of the progress he was making.

The definite prospect of Governor Rivers sending more convicts to the Bay State was revealed in an Associated Press story out of Atlanta.

Rivers said (according to the Associated Press) that six applicants for parole—four life term murderers and two burglars—amended their clemency petitions to express willingness to live in Massachusetts if allowed freedom.

SETS "HURLEY DAY"

The Georgia executive also announced "88 prisoners who escaped from Georgia camps since 'Hurley Day' still are at large."

"Hurley Day," he said, "is July 27, the day Governor Hurley criticized Georgia prison conditions in declining to extradite James Cunningham, a Georgia Negro chain-gang fugitive found in Massachusetts.

"In the future Hurley Day will be observed annually by serving all state prisoners codfish cakes and Boston baked beans a la Hurley," Rivers commented.

"On that day each year we also will hear applicants for paroles to prisoners who want to go to Massachusetts."

Rivers laughed and said he might proclaim "Hurley Day" officially.

The six new applications prompted Rivers to remark:

"It seems that Governor Hurley may have solved our prison problem for us.

"We may not have to keep any one in our chain-gangs under the conditions he complained about. They will all be in Massachusetts where he can look out for them."

MANY MAY SEEK PAROLE

Georgia Capitol attaches predicted there would be a flood of applications for clemency from prisoners who want to go to Massachusetts.

All of the traditional hostility between Northern and Southern statesmen flared in the Cunningham affair, when Governor Hurley accused Georgia of practising "barbarism" in the chain gang system and the Georgia governor bitterly assailed Hurley for harboring a fugitive from justice.

With relations between the two governors, even more strained by Governor Rivers' parole of Willis, Governor Hurley maintained a discreet silence again today. "No comment" was the State House report on the new blast.

FLEMING WILLIS

WELCOME READY

Meanwhile, Attorney Irwin T. Dorch, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Boston, and counsel for Cunningham a month ago, prepared to receive the paroled Negro, Willis, whenever he reaches the state border.

"If Willis will get in touch with me when he reaches the state line, I will bring him here and see that he is provided with enough to eat and a place to sleep until the expiration of his sentence provided he conducts himself as a good citizen.

"I understand he is a Sunday school teacher."

Plans for receiving the [illegible] however, were considerably hampered in that no one knows when he will arrive.

OWNS BARBER SHOP

The iron shackles off his feet, no more "houn' dawgs" or constables with sawed-off shotguns to worry about, Willis is making his way northward at an easy pace, walking down the railroad tracks and catching an auto ride where he can.

He owns a barber shop in Atlanta, has three children and a widowed mother.

His barber shop isn't much of a fundamental success, but Willis said he guessed it would keep his four dependents "eatin'."

"Ah don' know nothin' about it up theah," said the parolee, "but ah reckon ah better git raht on out of heah. Theah ain't no place like Atlanta, though.

"That chain gang ain't a bit bad. Ah behaved myself. Ah didn't git myself into no trouble."

Attorney Dorch refused to take Willis' statement about the chain gang as an honest expression made of his own accord.

"I'm of the opinion that Willis made that statement under duress," he exclaimed. "He probably had to say it to receive his parole, and to refute stories of treatment given chain gang prisoners.

"We're not in the market for criminals, but if anyone is being treated inhumanely, and is worthy of consideration, we're only too glad to give it to him."

GETS 17 CENTS

The paroled Negro carries with him, besides his parole, one pack of tailor-made, store-bought cigarettes, purchased with 17 cents made up in a collection among the chain gang members.

Without food and without money, depending upon his own two legs and rides from hospitable motorists, the Negro set out on his long trek to a land he has never seen.

Motorist Guilty Of Hitting Man With Crank

A motorist was found guilty today of striking a pedestrian over the head with a crank handle for refusing to help him fix his disabled car.

Arraigned in Quincy court, Vincent C. Lincoln, [illegible], of Mt. Blue street, Norwell, was sentenced by Judge James Mulhall to three months in the House of Correction. Lincoln appealed the conviction, which was on a charge of assault and battery.

On an additional charge of driving an automobile after his license had been revoked, Lincoln was fined $50. Judge Mulhall gave him until September 7 to pay.

He was convicted of assault on the [illegible] of Police Chief Hector [illegible] of Cohasset. According to the chief, the victim of the assault, Stephen Pagnano of Cohasset, was taken to a hospital for treatment.

'Lung' Wins Race as Child Risks Life for Other Girl

IN BREATH-TAKING DRAMA

This respirator was sent here by the Chicago American, a Hearst newspaper, following an appeal yesterday by Dr. T. L. Williams, deputy manager of health for Denver, when it became evident that unless another apparatus was obtained one of the girls must die.

Each girl had been spending part of the time in the breather, which forces air in and out of the lungs when the paralyzed chest muscles refuse to function.

When it became evident that Maybelle would need the apparatus exclusively, tiny Shirley volunteered to give up her share in the apparatus. She survived the night, but physicians [illegible] that [illegible] she would [illegible].

ILL SINCE AUGUST 11

Shirley will [illegible] be kept in the respirator [illegible] was said at the hospital [illegible] in it from [illegible] time to [illegible].

The little girl was taken ill August 11. [illegible]

Maybelle's [illegible] could save her life.

Shirley by this time had rallied sufficiently so that it was believed she could be moved safely from the lung for intervals and when [illegible] Maybelle [illegible] offered to give up her box.

LAUDS CHILD'S COURAGE

Dr. Williams [illegible] Shirley the "gamest [illegible]."

He said:

"To ask that little girl to abandon the only means she had to live is the worst job I've ever had. I'd hate to think what the answer would have been if she had been an adult—afraid to die."

Drop Suit Against Movie 'Booers'

Tifton, Ga., Sept. 2 (AP)—Attorneys for the Tifton Theater dropped a $10,000 damage suit and injunction today against seven reported sponsors of a [illegible] and the Tifton Gazette.

The original court action followed holding of [illegible] advertisements and publication in the Tifton Gazette of a paid notice urging [illegible] to [illegible] the ads.

N. J. DIVORCEE FLEES 'LOVE CAMPAIGN'

[illegible], N. J., Sept. 2 (INS)—Fed up with tropical love songs and Hawaiian troubadours, the twice-divorced Helen Ann Rork Getty Wilson fled from her New Jersey cottage and headed for the west coast today in an attempt to get away from the ardent "love campaign" of one of her ex-husbands, the wealthy broker, H. Douglas Wilson.

In an attempt to win back his estranged wife, from whom he was divorced last June, Wilson has been directing a campaign that borders on the [illegible] of knights of old.

Every night a boat, loaded down with Hawaiian singers, has been paddling back and forth in front of the Wilson cottage, sending tropical love songs across the water.

Wilson, who is personally supervising the activities of his emissaries from a house across the way, explained the reasons for his campaign.

"Just a month after the divorce, we met in Boston. She tore up the decree. In the presence of witnesses, we swore before God that we'd be man and wife."

Prior to her marriage to Wilson, Helen, daughter of the late Sam Rork, film producer, married Jean Paul Getty, western oil tycoon, and at the time of that divorce received a $2000-a-month alimony settlement.

R. I. Man Killed, 2d Hurt in Auto Dive

Attleboro, Sept. 2—One man was killed and another injured early today when an auto went out of control on Red Rock Hill on the Providence highway about two miles south of North Attleboro.

The dead man was identified by his driver's license as John J. Wasn, 30, of Eighth street, Providence. He died instantly of a skull fracture as the car swayed wildly on a 400-foot diagonal, climbed a 15-foot embankment and then toppled over into the highway.

Lying near the scene of the wreck in a semiconscious condition was John F. Lewis, 35, of North Main street, Providence. He [illegible] being in the car when [illegible] to question him.

Partition Alarms Nazis in Palestine

Stuttgart, Germany, Sept. 2 (AP)—Nazi Germany's conference of Germans abroad was told today that the situation of 2000 Germans in Palestine is "precarious" because of the British proposal to divide the Holy Land into Jewish, Arabic and British mandated states.

Group Leader Schwarz, from Palestine, said the trouble was that most of the German settlements would be included in the proposed Jewish state.

LIVE Long? Be a GIRL

'STRONGER SEX' SCORNED

Nottingham, England, Sept. 2 (AP)—Professor F. A. E. Crew of the University of Edinburgh gave the idea that man is the stronger sex a scientific kick in the pants today.

"There is no doubt whatsoever," he told the British Association for the Advancement of Science, "that the whole course of sex mortality is consistent with the view that man is the weaker sex."

He used census figures to bear out his thesis that women live longer.

Greater size of the male at birth and his habit of running into violent and sudden death are responsible, Dr. Crew said, adding:

"The true recipe for longevity is to be born a girl."

MotherDies, Twins Then Born O. K.

Kingsville, Tex., Sept. 2 (AP)—Infant twins, a boy and a girl, gained strength here today, although their mother had died before they were born.

The mother, Mrs. George Conde, 41, wife of a tenant farmer, was taken to the Kleberg County hospital Monday suffering a heart attack.

As the case grew worse, Dr. W. A. Harrison was called. Dr. C. C. Carothers accompanied him.

"When she died," Dr. Harrison said, "everything was ready, so we just went ahead."

The twins showed the effect of their mother's poor circulation immediately after the quickly performed operation. They responded, however, to efforts of saving them, which included brief incubator treatment. The boy weighed four pounds and 12 ounces, the girl five pounds eight ounces.

Ensuing hours saw the twins reach a state of normalcy, though the girl was thought to be slightly weaker than the boy.

The two doctors said the case might be the first of its kind in medical history.

DiStasios to Move Into Death House

For the first time in the history of the State Prison a father and son will occupy cells in the death house tomorrow.

Convicted of the Hudson "torch" [illegible], Frank DiStasio, 52, and his son Anthony, 26, will be moved into the death house some time tomorrow, the tenth day preceding the date set for their execution.

The son will be transferred from the East Cambridge Jail, where he has been confined for the past two years.

The father, who was granted a respite [illegible] in the death house, will be returned from the Cherry Hill section of the prison, where he has been passing doleful hours awaiting his fate over cross word puzzles.

'Pine Knot,' Says Fields to Judy Canova

DOROTHY LAMOUR

McCarthy Poison Ivy to Her

'Knots to You!' McCarthy Replies Woodenly

Hollywood, Sept. 2 (INS)—The Charlie McCarthy-Judy Canova-Edgar Bergen triangle became a quadrangle today when W. C. Fields hastened to Miss Canova's side.

The singing comedienne blamed Charlie for the crash of her romance with Bergen, declaring the dummy has become an obsession with the famed ventriloquist and [illegible].

"Eddie can throw his dummy into its trunk and crawl in after it for all of me."

The bulbous-nosed comedian of the stage and screen and lately of the air, where he carries on a bitter feud with Charlie, hastened to Miss Canova's defense with a bitter vituperation against the dummy.

ROOT OF ALL EVIL

"I always looked up McCarthy as a Trilby," Fields said, "but it seems I have been barking up the wrong tree.

"He is in reality a Frankenstein.

"Better that he had never been whittled into human shape.

"In his insidious way he has been trying to break up a beautiful friendship between myself and Dorothy Lamour, but Dorothy won't go near the little nipper.

GETS POISON IVY

"Last time Dorothy shook hands with him she contracted a severe case of poison ivy."

Field dropped around to the "Thrill of a Lifetime" set at Paramount studio where Miss Canova was at work. He gave her his sympathy.

"But your break with Bergen may be for the best," he told the actress hopefully.

"Think of going on a honeymoon with a guy like that.

"Why, every time you sat on his knee he'd have you talking to yourself.

"And he probably would have McCarthy hanging around on the other knee, anyhow.

IT'S HIS CHARM

"I've been taking Bergen's lip from McCarthy for months."

Miss Canova explained that McCarthy's strange power over Bergen is due to the dummy's "captivating charm." She added:

"Charlie can talk Eddie into anything."

Miss Canova declared that of late she had heard nothing from Bergen but "Charlie this and Charlie that" until McCarthy had become a human to her.

"I'm not going to play second fiddle to a dummy," she pronounced indignantly, and said squarely that her quarrel and consequent break with the famous ventriloquist is going to stick.

Pastors Clash on Spain Crisis As Religion Enters Argument

Cleric Lays Warfare To Catholic Church

By WILLIAM MICHELFELDER

Williamstown, Sept. 2—All quiet on tolerance front. The Institute of Human Relations went into its fourth day. But not until the Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston College, had made it his business to show why Protestants, Jews and Catholics ought to have an understanding on the crisis in Spain.

With the day set aside for a chit-chat on the freedom of the press, Father Ahern, with Rev. Bernard Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, and the Rabbi E. Israel of Har Sinai Congregation, Baltimore, put themselves to the [illegible] last night in Chapin Hall, of [illegible] "fundamental differences" and thus carried off yesterday and today.

For the first time since the fifth conference of the institute began an argument started.

Since Monday the various gentlemen have [illegible] tossed the question of tolerance.

Today the institute was still conscious of a discussion amongst the three representatives mentioned.

The Rev. Clausen asserted that the Roman Catholic church was "in charge of Spain" and thus responsible for the present crisis and Rabbi Israel said, "all civil [illegible] ought to be distinct from religious beliefs."

This generated a discussion on Spain and Father Ahern said this:

"The reason why the loyalist government has been called the 'left' is because nobody knows much about Spanish politics. The left in Spain is the name given to all radical parties.

"There are many Catholics opposed to the monarchy who are not radicals. Gen. Franco, who supports the popular action, is not Fascist," he said.

Conservative newspapers in the United States were branded as enemies of the American people by Oswald Garrison Villard, co-editor of "The Nation." Villard said:

"The largest and most conservative papers in the United States have been the ones most indifferent to attacks upon the constitutional rights of the individual.

He charged that newspaper barons had a very special meaning for the freedom of the press and added:

"It means that the freedom of their columns is denied to those whom they dislike, whose teachings they hate or fear.

"There are great groups in their communities who can never get their aspirations or their points of view printed in the columns of these papers."

DEFENDS SENSATIONALISM

He offered the example of the case of murders committed by the Chicago police. He said it was not until the tragedy had happened there was some reaction in the editorial columns of newspapers of this type.

Fulton Oursler, editor of Liberty, defended sensationalism in magazines and newspapers if it were constructive. He said:

"It is not enough to give the public information and have it correct. If it is to do any good in the world it must be interesting.

"It must be sensational. The snobbery that turns up its nose at sensationalism is often turning up its nose at the very public it wishes to reach and help."

He told his audience that the evangelistic opportunity for social progress lies in the field of the popular magazine.

Others participating in the discussion were Wilbur Forrest of the New York Herald Tribune and Henry R. Luce, New York magazine publisher.

Among the Greater Bostonians attending the Institute of Human Relations at Williams College is Mrs. Augusta Schon Holzman of Brookline, president and founder of the New England Council of Christians and Jews. She is also chairman of the Breakfast Forum of Adult Education.

Age Ousts Beauty In Salesmanship, Survey Shows

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Salesmen and women in department stores do their best selling after the age of 50, says a survey issued today by Charles F. Stech, market and sales analyst.

Youth and beauty lose out to gray hair in every decade from the twenties on. In stores in New York, Pittsburgh and several other large American cities Stech found that sales people in their fifties sold more than those in their forties, the forties more than the thirties and the thirties more than the twenties.

This happened even in departments where the managers preferred youth or good looks or both in sales people and tried to push the youngsters ahead.

"In fact, the data we are gathering," said Stech, "show that sales people from 60 to 75 are selling very little less than those in their early twenties.

"For every $100 worth of merchandise sold by a sales persons in the twenties, one in the thirties with an equal opportunity sells $102.04. A sales person in the forties sells $107.38 and one in the fifties $108.78."

U. S. CITIZEN FORCED INTO SPAIN WAR DEAD

Worcester, Sept. 2—State Department officials of the United States government can throw away a file of correspondence marked, "Sebastian Lisbell, Collinsville, Conn."

He is dead.

After more than a year of waiting while urgent appeals for aid were forwarded to State Department officials, Lisbell's widow received a cable today that her husband was killed in the Spanish civil war.

If the State Department acts now, it will be too late to bring back her husband and the father of her two small children.

HAD CITIZENSHIP PAPERS

A native of Spain, Lisbell came to this country several years ago, married a Worcester girl and moved to Collinsville, Conn. They had two children.

He had taken out his first citizenship papers in the United States.

In June, 1936, he had saved up enough money to take his entire family to Spain to visit his aged mother and brother in Valencia.

When the siege of Valencia broke, the Spanish government seized Lisbell and pressed him into service in the Loyalist army.

PLEADED FOR HELP

Tearfully, Mrs. Lisbell returned to America with her two small children, and began negotiations with the United States government to secure her husband's release.

For a year she exchanged letters with the State Department, pleading for her husband's safety.

She doesn't have to write any more letters now.

Four Hurt in Crash At Jamaica Plain

Four persons were injured today in a collision between two machines on the Arborway at Forest Hills street, Jamaica Plain.

More seriously hurt were the two occupants of one machine, Samuel Lombardi, 29, of Frontenac street, Dorchester, the driver and his wife Florence, 27.

Both were taken to Forest Hills Hospital. Lombardi suffered a lacerated scalp, concussion and a possible fractured left knee. His wife received a questionable fractured skull, concussion and cuts and bruises of the body.

Robert A. Curran of Stratford street, West Roxbury, operator of the other machine, according to police, escaped injury.

Two passengers in the car, Mrs. Louise Guthrow, 50, of Powder House boulevard, Somerville, and her daughter, Leone, 22, were hurt. The latter was released after being treated for minor injuries.

Cenacle Convent Retreat Tomorrow

The first retreat of the Fall season at Cenacle Convent, Lake street, Brighton, will open tomorrow evening under the auspices of the Association of the Cenacle. The retreat will continue through to Monday. Women from all parts of Greater Boston are invited to attend.

The retreat, including spiritual exercises and meditations, will be under the direction of the Rev. John Madden, S. J., former minister at Shadowbrook, Jesuit House at Lenox.

La Guardia in Lawrence Sept. 12

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, will address a mass meeting of textile workers in Lawrence, September 12, Hyman Blumberg, New England regional director of the textile workers' organizing committee of the CIO announced today.

Blumberg also announced an election in two weeks at the American Woolen Company's Wood and Ayer mills to determine the bargaining agency for 11,000 employes.

50,000 TO MARCH HERE ON CONSTITUTION DAY

The 150th anniversary of the adoption of the American Constitution will be celebrated in Boston Sept. 17 by one of the most impressive parades in the city's history, according to tentative plans prepared by Adjutant General Charles A. Cole, chief marshal.

Fifty thousand members of the National Guard, patriotic, fraternal and civic organizations are expected to participate in the colorful spectacle.

According to present plans, the long column will move through several of the city's downtown streets. The exact line of march is yet to be determined.

After the parade has broken ranks, a great patriotic meeting will be held on Boston Common under sponsorship of the National Constitution Day Committee.

More than 25,000 school children will take part.

Like Boston, other cities and states in the country are making elaborate preparations to memorialize the signing of the historical document.

In Rhode Island, a committee headed by Governor Robert Quinn is arranging a program for exercises to be held on the State House grounds in Providence.

AFL STILL OPEN TO CIO UNIONS

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today the Federation would welcome back the 10 suspended CIO unions if they returned without any conditions.

Their return, he said, would be the first step toward reuniting the American labor movement, divided into two bitterly warring camps since John L. Lewis started the Committee for Industrial Organization in November, 1935.

If the CIO unions took this step—and Green frankly said he doubted they would—the next move toward final peace, he said, would be appointment of a joint committee of A. F. of L. and CIO leaders to work out a detailed settlement.

CIO Asks Lewis To Come Here Oct. 30

State CIO leaders pressed plans today for bringing John L. Lewis, bushy-browed chieftain of insurgent labor, to Boston on October 30 for a state convention and to aid in organizing a state industrial council of CIO.

The proposed state council is being urged as a central executive unit, to command CIO war on A. F. of L. forces in the state.

Denounced and dismissed from the ranks of the A. F. of L. at the recent Lowell labor convention, the orphaned CIO unions will now press their fight for new members, even into the ranks of the mother union, Michael F. Widman, Jr., New England director of CIO declared.

Up to the present time organizing efforts of CIO agents have been concentrated in fields where there were no existing unions, or in territories where the workers had not already been organized by A. F. of L. leaders.

Atheism Scored By Pope in Speech

Vatican City, Sept. 2 (INS)—This is an "epoch of the negation of God!" Pope Pius today had declared as he attacked atheism before an audience of 287 newly-married couples.

"Atheism is the most terrible disaster that could happen," the Pontiff said.

"Our time is afflicted by this horrible, terrible thing! It is a horrible misfortune that our epoch must be called the epoch of the negation of God."

Scotch 'Chaser' In $100 Holdup

Two armed bandits, who lingered to lift two bottles of Scotch and one of rye after cleaning $100 in cash from the register of the Chiswick Pharmacy on Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, were sought by police today.

With revolvers drawn, the bandits held three clerks and the store manager at bay while they scooped up the contents of the register and then fled.

W. C. Fields Loses Plea for Retrial

Riverside, Cal., Sept. 2 (INS)—An appeal of W. C. Fields, comedian of the films and radio, for retrial of a suit in which Dr. Jesse Citron was awarded $12,000 for medical treatment given Fields, had been denied in Superior Court today.

Attorneys for Fields indicated they will take their fight to a higher court.

Tourists in Europe Spend for Record

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Commerce Department officials estimated today that American tourists will spend $600,000,000 in France, Germany, Great Britain and other foreign countries this year.

This total would be the largest since 1930, and would top last year's by $100,000,000. However, it would be about $200,000,000 under 1929.

R. I. City Razed In Sham Battle

(Along a line from Quincy Bay to the Taunton River's joining with the sea, a six-day sham battle is being fought with more than 200,000 "straw men." All the actual men taking part in the war game are 275 high-ranking officers from all northeastern states, located at Fort Devens. Each day the Boston Evening American carries latest developments in this mythical war.)

New England was breathing more easily today after a concerted 50-mile offensive launched in Providence, R. I., by the Black army was finally repelled in Brockton and North Abington.

The drive was halted, however, only after the enemy had left death and destruction in its wake.

With the First Army headquarters in Medway as their goal, the Blacks began their invasion at North Providence, R. I. The First Field Army was greatly outnumbered and proved incapable of holding back the invaders until further help could be mustered.

When the smoke of battle had cleared, the city had been completely razed by fire.

MOVE ON BAY STATE

Aroused to greater heights by this Rhode Island coup, the invaders swept into Massachusetts intent on bringing the war to a quick and successful close. Two of their regiments of mechanized cavalry and one regiment of light tanks caused havoc in the territory behind the headquarters of the 43d Division.

So disastrous were the enemy raids that Major Morris B. Payne ordered a sudden shift of headquarters from North Rehoboth to Attleboro. At the same time, hurried calls for immediate relief were sent.

While the enemy kept sweeping further north, the 18th regular army brigade rushed to relieve the 86th brigade of Maine and Vermont on the division's left wing.

Meanwhile, several little towns, helpless against the incendiary tactics of the Blacks, were hopelessly ravaged.

PLANES TO RESCUE

With the realization of impending defeat staring them in the face, the Blues fought desperately. The street fighting that had marked the previous day's skirmishes in this vicinity was incidental in comparison to the critical battle that now faced them. On the outcome of their defense here rested the retention or surrender of New England as United States territory.

The battle was a see-saw affair until the arrival of much-needed re-inforcements and the preparedness of the American planes to offset a potential air attack spurred the Blues to eventual victory.

A resume of the day's activities revealed that the Blacks had caused irreparable damage in many of the outlying towns, but that the number of lives lost was far less than it was first believed.

First Army strategians are now preparing to drive out once and for all the threat of the Black army in a series of moves planned for tomorrow.

ONLY A "SHAM"

Fortunately, the deadly war between the Blues and the Blacks is just a "sham." Everything takes place at Fort Devens under the direction of 125 Blue officers and 125 Blacks.

The commanders of each side hand their mythical troop orders to 125 umpires who, in turn, reveal these moves to men who represent the front line troops of the opposing forces. And these are the men who would actually learn things during a war.

The news then rebounds to officers, regimental heads and commanders, who promptly plan a counter move.

HUNT NORFOLK FUGITIVE

Norfolk, Sept. 2—Norfolk Prison colony guards and state police pressed their search today for Michael Bishop, 37, of Fall River, who escaped last night from an unbarred "model dormitory" at the prison colony.

The search, lasting all through last night, was hampered by dense fog.

Superintendent Maurice Winslow said that Bishop was found to be missing between the 8 o'clock and 9 o'clock checkups last night.

HEARST GROUP BOND PLANS WITHDRAWN

Washington, Sept. 2 (INS)—The Securities Exchange Commission announced late yesterday that it had granted applications for the withdrawal of registration statements filed under the securities act by Hearst Magazines, Inc., and Hearst Publications, Inc.

The applications for debentures in the amount of $13,000,000 for Hearst Magazines, Inc., and for $22,500,000 for Hearst Publications, Inc., were filed last March.

SEC ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement of the SEC stated:

"The Securities Exchange Commission announced today it has received applications for the withdrawal of registration statements under the securities act by Hearst Magazines, Inc., and Hearst Publications, Inc., the applications have been granted by the commission."

In asking the Securities and Exchange Commission for leave to withdraw its registration, Hearst Publications, Inc., gave as its reasons the following:

"The market for industrial debentures was turning less favorable at the time of filing, and has continued less favorable up to the present time. Our proposed underwriters have therefore not been in position to market the debentures at an interest rate and at an underwriting commission which we considered attractive.

"In the meantime, we have been meeting regularly the payments on our old long-termed debt, thus reducing the net amount outstanding from $18,778,706.96 (pro forma consolidated basis) at December 31, 1936, to $16,549,541.59 at the date of this letter. Some reduction has also been made in our interest-bearing current obligations.

MAY CHANGE PLANS

"As a result, the amount of the debentures which, ultimately, we may wish to sell may be substantially changed and when such time arrives, we may wish to issue securities with different provisions and of a different type than those described in our present registration statement."

In the case of the magazine company a similar letter was sent. The reduction of the funded debt was not as large but more than half of the funded debt has been paid since the registration statement was filed for the magazine company.

Spurns $1 Reward In $25,000 Find

Atlanta, Sept. 2 (AP)—Miss Dorothy Ruice, pretty 19-year-old clerk in a 5 and 10 store, found herself the central figure today in a $25,000 drama.

She said a "tall and handsome man" came to her counter, bought a 10-cent bottle of ink, paid for it and walked away—forgetting a small leather portfolio.

Shortly afterward the man dashed into the store and the portfolio, containing a stack [illegible] and a batch of bonds totaling $25,000, was returned to him.

On the way out he stopped at Miss Ruice's counter and offered her $1 reward. She thanked him and rejected the offer. The man's identity was not learned.

Masaryk Gravely Ill at Prague

Prague, Sept. 2 (INS)—T. G. Masaryk, aged Czechoslovakian hero and statesman who retired after serving many years as president of the republic, was seriously ill today.

James Roosevelt Press Contact Man

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—James Roosevelt, the President's son and newest member of the White House secretariat, took over the press liaison assignment temporarily today.

It was his first taste of dealing with the newspapermen for his father since he became a secretary July 1, at salary of $10,000.

PROWLER GLAD POLICE CAME IN EVERETT

It was a polite alleged thief, anyhow, who broke into the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Philomena Imbornone of Ferry street, Everett. At least, he became so after the couplesurprised him as he was prowling around their bedroom.

The alleged burglar, Joseph C. Lacaillade, 25, of Forest avenue, Everett, apologized to his captors as he began losing ground in a rough and tumble fray with Imbornone as he attempted to make a hurried exit.

"Excuse me, I'm sorry," he said, as Mrs. Imbornone rose from bed thinking one of her eight children was ill when she heard noise in the room nd saw a dark form.

"DRAGGED HIM OUT"

"He was just scooting under the bed," Mrs. Imbornone related. "I dragged him out by the heel and then held him by the neck. Wit hthe other hand I put on the ligt. Then my husband was awakened.

"The stranger attempted to flee, saying 'I'm sorry; Excuse me.'

"My husband chased him and they both fell down stairs. The man began to pray. I called the police and in the meantime my husband got the burglar out in the kitchen and had to sit on him to keep him still.

"And the man was so big, over six feet, but pa did a good job," she boasted proudly as she looked at her hero.

DMITS FEAR

But if Papa Imbornone was the ero in the story, Mother was certainly the heroine, for it was she no first aid hand on the intruder nd held him captive, without owing if he were armed or not.

Scared?

"Quite a bit," Mrs. Imbornone admitted.

The intruder's politeness was in no wise diminished after he had been arrested and arraigned in Malden Court on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime nad attempted larceny.

Pleading guilty to the charge, with the explanation he was drunk and didn't know what he was doing, he thanked police for arresting him, explaining:

"I think I would have beeen killed if the police hadn't come when they did."

He was held in $2000 bail for the and jury.

How Prowler Met Match

Boston Evening American Photo

Very happy was Joseph C. Lacaillade, 25, of Everett, to be arrsted today as a burglar. In Malden court he said he wanted to thank Everett police for rescuing him from his captors. Lacaillade was trapped in the home of Mrs. Philomena Imbornone, in Ferry street. She and her husband administered a thorough beating. Mrs. Imbornone shows cameraman how she pulled the man from beneath her bed.

hild Bride Angry At 'Split' Report

Sneedville, Tenn., Sept. 2 (AP)—harlie Johns denied today that he and his nine-year-old bride have utted and predicted:

"Sooner or later we're going to build our own home, move into it and set up housekeeping."

Indignant over the separation reports that seeped out of the remote hill country, 23-year-old Charlie and Eunice Winstead Johns sat under an apple tree at the home of the bride's father and expressed a hope that "people will leave us alone."

His answer to the separation reports was:

"We're together, ain't we? That ought to be proof we are not separated."

EXPORTS LEAD IN JULY TRADE

Washington, Sept. 2 (INS)—The United States recorded a favorable balance of trade of $1,836,000 in July, the Commerce Department reported today.

During July, shipments abroad were valued at $267,185,000 and imports $265,349,000.

So far this year, however, the United States has piled up an aggregate unfavorable trade balance of $144,819,000.

Only in one other month of this year—May—has this country sold more than it purchased. The unfavorable trade margin at the end of July, 1936 was only $24,214,000. Commerce Department trade experts predicted the nation would close 1937 with its first unfavorable trade balance in nearly half a century.

Total shipments abroad for the first seven months of 1937 were valued at $1,803,829,000, an increase of $468,748,000 over a year ago. Imports were valued at $1,948,648,000 a rise of $589,083,000 over 1936.

FIN. COM. PROBE ENDS; MAYOR QUIZZES SELF

Opening of the mayor's self explanation brought a titter in the city council chamber, when he asked himself:

"You are Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield and you have already testified in this hearing?"

Very gravely, he then replied:

"Yes."

He said he represented, in a few legal matters, William J. Driscoll, president and treasurer of the Codman Hill company, who testified yesterday, but neither Mansfield nor his law firm ever had represented the Codman Hill Company.

Q—Recently you appear to have been devoting considerable time and energy in trying to show that the Codman Hill Construction Company work was well done and that the charges were reasonable. If you are not interested in or concerned for the Codman Hill Construction Company, why did you spend this time and energy in that way?

ANSWERS HIMSELF

Then the mayor answered himself, saying:

"The work under investigation was performed by the Codman Hill Construction Company for the White Fund trustees and they have either paid for the work or have been billed for it to the extent of $137,000.

"As chairman of the board of trustees I wish to show, if it can be shown, that the money spent by our board was well spent and properly spent and that the board and the White Fund got full value received for the money that they spent."

Mansfield further declared it was obvious, until he began to participate in the hearings, that all evidence which might clear the trustees of criticism was being excluded and the evidence was being presented in a manner which could not fail to cause the public to believe there was a scandalous waste of money.

CLAIMS PICTURE "UNTRUE"

Many times, the Finance Commission counsel, Mansfield charged, had used "the unguarded expression that the fund had been pilfered, squandered and stolen."

"I came into the case," said the mayor (answering another of his own questions) in order to correct an unfair and untrue picture, because evidence was being deliberately suppressed false figures were being used and the sum of $411,000 was constantly being announced as the amount of money of which the fund had been looted, pilfered and squandered, together with city departments."

The mayor asserted this figure was $65,000 less than the total amount of business done with the city and, although the investigation was supposed to cover all city departments as well as the White Fund, "not one iota of evidence has been presented to indicate that any money paid the Codman company by city departments, exclusive of the White Fund, was improperly paid."

Slayer of Girl, 10, Gets Life Term

Detroit, Sept. 2 (AP—Joseph Jacobs, confessed killer of the 10-year-old daughter of his "best friend," was sentenced today to life at hard labor in the state prison at Marquette, Mich. There is no death penalty in Michigan.

Circuit Judge Harry B. Keidan pronounced sentence after Jacobs, sobbing and near collapse, had pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree.

The 45-year-old defendant admitted that he beat Evelyn Mack to death with an automobile crank Monday afternoon after she had accompanied him on a trip into the country.

2 Milton Homes Reported Looted

Breaks during the night into two homes on Reedsdale road, Milton, were reported by police today.

Entrance in both cases was made by forcing a window.

Victims of the breaks were George W. Grimm, an employe of the Boston Evening American promotion department, and his neighbor, Dr. Frank H. Russo, a dentist.

Grimm, whose family is away for the summer, left for home to determine the loss. Dr. Russo, whose family was away for the day, said "very little" was taken.

Sugar Bill Signed, Boosting Quota

Washington, Sept. 2 (INS)—The AAA announced today that, under the new sugar act signed by President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, total quotas for consumption in the United States in 1937 had been increased to 7,042,733 short tons, raw value. The quotas fixed under the Jones-Costigan act for 1937 were 6,682,670 short tons, raw value.

The regulations do not permit Puerto Rico, Hawaii or the Philippine Islands to send in any more refined sugar under the new act than was admitted under the Jones-Costigan Act. The Virgin Islands cannot send in any refined sugar.

The administration battle against the new act was based on charges by Secretaries of Agriculture Wallace and Interior Ickes that the restrictions against the insular possessions on shipping refined sugar were discriminatory.

Increases were allowed on raw sugar from all of the islands.

Hawaii may ship 988,551 tons under the new act as compared to 976,685 under the Jones-Costigan Act; Puerto Rico 840,954, as compared to 831,508, and the Virgin Islands 9396, as compared to 5462.

Th ePhilippine Islands quota was increased from 1,035,742 to 1,085,301, and Cuba from 1,922,423 to 2,014,538.

Continental beet sugar growers were assigned a quota of 1,633,361 tons, as against 1,613,576, and continental cane sugar producers 442,793 as compared to 270,664.

ROOSEVELT O. K. ON HOUSING MEASURE

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today his approval of the Wagner-Steagall bill launching a $526,000,000 experiment in federal-local slum clearance and low-rent housing construction.

He also signed the Senate bill authorizing a government monopoly in the production of helium and changing export rules to permit its sale to foreign countries in restricted quantities for commercial or medical purposes.

Agitation for loosening existing restrictions on export of this non-inflammable gas began soon after the German dirigible Von Hindenburg crashed in flames after an explosion at Lakehurst, N. J.

Under the new act, no helium purchased for use abroad could be used for military purposes and all foreign sales would have to be approved first by six government agencies, including the War and Navy departments.

$1,000,000 CAPITAL

The loan-grant housing act, carrying out one of the President's campaign promises, creates a United States housing authority in the Department of the Interior with an initial capital of $1,000,000 already appropriated.

It also authorizes up to $500,000,000 in government-guaranteed bonds to raise funds for loans and an additional appropriation of $25,000000 for grants. Funds for grants proponents of the act say, will not be needed until actual construction is well under way.

The housing authority may lend to public housing agencies up to 90 per cent of the cost of the projects. The local communities would put up the other 10 per cent. Loans may run for a maximum of 60 years.

$1000 PER ROOM

To obtain a subsidy a local group must agree to demolish a slum unit for every new low-rent unit built.

Cost of projects will be limited to $1000 per room or $4000 per family unit, except in cities of more than 500,000 population where the maximums would be $1250 and $5000 respectively.

Families with incomes not exceeding five times the rental will be eligible to move into the new units. This is raised to six times the rental in cases of families with three or more dependents.

B. U. Tests Aid Night Blindness

Boston Doctor Cites Lack of Vitamin

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP)—Dr. Harold Jeghers of Boston reported today deficiency in vitamin A may be the reason you have trouble finding your seat in a dark movie or driving your automobile safely at night.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Jeghers said a study of 162 students of Boston University school of medicine showed night blindness the most frequent manifestation of vitamin A deficiency.

He said dry skin, susceptibility infection, inflammation of the eyelids and photophobia, or aversion to light, were other results. Skipping of meals and poor choice of foods were found chiefly responsible or the deficiency, he added.

Dr. Jeghers described as a typical case that of a man of 23 with normal vision who had to give up driving at night, needed an usher in a dark theater and couldn't see to play golf in early evening.

Baker Heads Scout Alumni Conclave

Dr. Barton Baker, noted Rochester, N. Y., attorney, arrived in Boston today to act as master of ceremonies for the Eibeetian Legion of Lone Scouts to be held in the Hotel Lenox Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Governor Herbert Lehman of New York sent his greetings to this, the fourth international convention of the scouts, who are a Boy Scout alumni organization. Dr. Baker and United States Senator Rush D. Holt will address the convention on scouting problems.

PORT BUSINESS SHOWS GAIN

Transatlantic passengers arriving at the Port of Boston during the past eight months, ending August 31, totalled 34,945, a gain of 1461 over that of last year, according to Collector of Customs Joseph A. Maynard.

Next in gain of 1303 were those from Canada, from 24,497 to 25,800. Newfoundland showed an increase of 55, with 401 this year and 346 in 1936. A loss from the West Indies of 74, attributed to additional cruises on the part of several lines last year to that section and not repeated this year, showed 3310, compared to 3084 at the present time.

There were 1391 arrivals of foreign steamers for the current year, compared with 1320 a year ago, an increase of 71 ships.

AMERICANS IN RANGE OF FIRE

Chinese government mint and other administrative buildings.

A dozen miles to the north, the major fighting surged on, with Japanese asserting their troops were approaching the walls of Paoshan, and Chinese declaring their lines were holding firm. The Japanese admitted their earlier claim to the capture of Paoshan was a mistake.

JAPS WASTE SHELLS

Liuho, in this area, was pounded fiercely by great Japanese naval shells and air bombs, but the Chinese troops stayed. About historic Woosung, too, where some sections still are held by the Chinese, there was furious Japanese bombardment from air and sea.

American naval observers were amazed at the prodigal use of the expensive Japanese shells and bombs, most of which were falling in wastelands undefended by the Chinese.

Where the Chinese troops did come in range, they burrowed into the earth like groundhogs, coming out only when the bombardment waned.

In the northern provinces the Japanese army brought the entire length of the Peiping-Kalgan railroad under its domination, and dispatches from Kalgan said a Japanese-fostered "peace maintenance commission" had been set up, similar to those already established in Peiping and Tientsin.

These were seen generally as forerunners to Japanese-controlled "autonomous anti-Communist governments" in the north.

Shortly before the sunset raid, Japanese naval authorities warned the British army to evacuate its outposts on the western boundary of the International Settlement as they were preparing to bomb the Chinese communication lines in the adjacent Jessfield park district.

The British did not reply.

The endangered British outposts are an extension of the line held by American marines. St. John's University is a scant few hundred yards from the Jessfield Park station and the railroad and highway bridges across Soochow Creek.

MORE JAPANESE TROOPS

American naval observers reported 14 Japanese transports off Liuho and 14 others off Woosung, endeavoring to discharge troops, tanks and heavy artillery.

American naval officers estimating this would bring Japan's forces in the Shanghai-Woosung-Liuho sector to more than 75,000 men, opposed to a Chinese strength of some 200,000.

A Japanese army spokesman admitted that the Japanese army was encountering unexpectedly heavy resistance and confessed that the reported occupation of the walled city of Paoshan yesterday was incorrect.

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (INS)—Japan is ready to recall her expeditionary force from China and "join hands in friendship" if China will prove her sincerity, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told foreign correspondents at a reception today.

Otherwise, he declared, Tokyo will take "suitable measures" against any institutions or resources which might be employed by China against Japan.

And in this category he included the Canton-Kowloon railway, which links Canton and Hong Kong, treasure-house of British interests in South China.

Tracing the course of the present conflict, Hirota charged anti-Japanese feeling had been "laboriously fostered by Chinese leaders during years of collusion with Communists."

"The Sino-Soviet non-aggression pact concluded a few days ago has special significance in this connection," he said. "Japan, as a bulwark against Communism, cannot afford to remain indifferent to it."

The rights and interests of other powers in China will be "fully respected by Japan," he said.

"Our government is giving careful consideration to the matter of safeguarding them," Hirota declared. "At the same time, in order that peace may be restored as soon as possible, the powers are invited to co-operate with Japan by refraining from any action likely to prolong the present hostilities. We deeply regret that victims of the conflict have included foreigners."

WHERE WAR TAKES TOLL IN CHINA

International News Photograph Service

From barricaded positions atop a Shanghai building, Japanese troops are shown here making observations of the progress of the "unofficial" war. In the background, smoke is seen rolling from a building set afire by a bomb.

The conquest of Peiping finally achieved, hard-bitten Japanese troops march through one of the gates of the ancient city. At this point, heroic defenders hurled back successive Japanese attacks for several days before yielding to superior numbers and equipment. Heavy reinforcements arriving daily from Nippon have forced the Chinese armies to fall back in several areas.

PHANTOM SUB SINKS BRITISH TANKER

ish destroyers reaching Gibraltar after a widespread search for the submarine which torpedoed H. M. S. Havock Wednesday night expressed belief the offender had been sunk.

This, however, was not borne out by official admiralty reports, which indicated that either the "mad dog" submarine had escaped or that more than one submersible was engaged in the raids that have aroused Britain.

DROP DEPTH BOMBS

The Havock was attacked Tuesday night while on patrol duty off Valencia. A torpedo was fired pointblank at her, but missed.

In accordance with previous instructions from the admiralty, the Havock dropped five depth bombs at the spot where the raider was last seen.

Members of the crew of the Havock said the destroyer zigzagged when they saw the torpedo approaching and immediately dropped depth bombs. Oil rose to the surface, indicating the submarine had been hit.

Public jubilation at these reports from Gibraltar was dampened when the admiralty announced they did not correspond with officially known acts.

"We only wish it were true," a spokesman said. "But our definite information is that although depth charges were dropped, the vessel was not located, and must be presumed to have escaped. The attack on the Woodford seems to bear out this belief."

The Woodford, en route from Barcelona to Valencia, was attacked at 7 a. m. yesterday. Two torpedoes were fired, and at least one struck. The tanker sank at 10 a. m., the crew taking to the boats and reaching Benicarlo, Spain.

At the time of this attack the cruiser Galatea, four British destroyers and one French warship were patrolling the waters outside Valencia harbor. The Galatea and other British warships had rushed to the scene when the Havock was attacked, sweeping a radius from 10 to 15 miles off the Spanish coast in their search for the submarine.

The Admiralty denied rumors that naval leave in British ports had been cancelled and that the home fleet was preparing to sail for the Mediterranean. The rumors also said naval reservists had been ordered to stand by.

STUDY ARMED PATROL

The Cabinet resumed its emergency session to deal with the situation after a brief recess. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden arranged to receive the French charge d'affaires this evening to discuss the French proposal for an armed patrol of all neutral vessels in the Mediterranean.

Eden also planned to see the American, German and Italian ambassadors regarding both the Mediterranean and the Far Eastern crises.

With five destroyers and two cruisers scouring the Spanish coast between Valencia and Alicante and as far eastward as the Balearics in their search for the "phantom" submarine, the huge battleship Warspite was groomed at Portsmouth for early departure.

Mounting public indignation over activities of the "mad dog" submarine was reflected in bitter editorials, newspapers demanding instant action against the aggressor.

"Put an end to this freebooter's insolent contempt for the British navy," said the Evening News.

JAPAN TAKES CHINA 'DEAD MAN'S LAND'

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1937)

Hwailai, China, Sept. 2—Two thousand Chinese troops have been killed in the 10-day Japanese campaign which carried Nippon's troops from Peiping, over the Great Wall of China, to the Inner Mongolian plateau.

This was revealed to me today by General Seishiro Itagaki when I arrived here after an adventurous trip riding on Japanese troop trains and armored cars and at times hiking beside marching troops.

When I reached this Chahar province stronghold where General Itagaki has established his divisional headquarters, he declared only 700 Japanese were killed and 400 wounded in contrast to the heavy Chinese casualties.

"We are planning to push the defeated Chinese southwest through Shansi province to the Tungkuan pass, and thence into central Asia, 500 miles from Peiping," the general said.

For two days I crossed through a countryside ripe with bumper crops—but not a single farmer could be seen. The harvest was deserted.

I saw numberless farm houses and entire walled cities—all without a single inhabitant.

Windows, doors and furnishings of houses had been ripped out and personal belongings of residents pillaged by the hasty retreating Chinese troops. Only prowling dogs, feeding on human corpses and dead horses, were left behind.

The Japanese in the region faced a literal "Dead Man's Land," without provisions of any kind. It was estimated 1,000,000 Chinese noncombatants had fled with the Chinese armies in the face of the Japanese advance.

I saw abandoned piles of ammunition everywhere—but no sign of human life.

At one point along the Great Wall eight American railway locomotives had been blown up to block a tunnel and thus cut a railway which the Japanese had been operating from Kalgan to Peiping.

Thousands More Now Taking to Hi-Li Sport

If you haven't tried Hi-Li, you had better do it now.

You're just out of the swing if you don't play the fascinating new sport that has gained thousands of converts in Boston.

Hi-Li is the game that you have seen played in the streets, homes and amusement places.

A small wooden paddle, to which a rubber ball is attached with a strong elastic cord, is the only equipment required.

The object of the game is to hit the ball with the paddle, then as the ball rebounds on the end of the cord, hit it again. Keep trying this and see how many times you can go without a miss.

Recognizing the great interest in the game, a group of Boston theaters are sponsoring a series of elimination Hi-Li contests. The Boston Evening American is co-operating with them, publishing daily the theaters in which contests are held.

9:30 a. m.—Medford Theater, Medford.

10:30 a. m.—Waltham Theater, Waltham; Hamilton Theater, Dorchester, and Rialto Theater, Lowell.

11:30 a. m.—Watertown Theater, Watertown.

1 p. m.—Strand Theater, Haverhill.

4 p. m.—Modern Theater, Lawrence.

Tomorrow's contests will be held at the following places:

9:30 a. m.—Strand Theater, Chelsea.

10:30 a. m.—Revere Theater, Revere.

11:30 a. m.—Lincoln Theater, Quincy Point.

'Criminal' War History Hit by Wells

Nottingham, England, Sept. 2 (AP)—H. G. Wells told the British Association for the Advancement of Science today that elementary education should place less emphasis on the "criminal history" of kings and conquests.

"I believe that the crazy, combative patriotism that plainly threatens to destroy civilization today is begotten very largely by history lessons," the author declared.

"They take the growing mind at a naturally barbaric phase and inflame and fix its barbarism."

Franco Foes Offer To Yield in North

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 2 (AP)—Asturian government leaders were reported negotiating today for the surrender of Gijon—and virtually all the rest of government-held northwestern Spain—to advancing Insurgent forces.

Border advices said the commander of an insurgent brigade marching westward toward the Biscayan port had entered conversations with parliamentary deputies of the government provinces.

Franco's drive to dominate the north coast started a year ago with the fall of Irun and San Sebastian. Pushing westward, his forces conquered Bilbao on June 19 and Santander, last Basque stronghold, August 25.

REDS ASK MORE GROUP PROBES

Investigation into activities of a number of organizations was asked by the Communist Party in Massachusetts today of the special legislative commission appointed to probe Communism, Fascism and other alleged subversive activities.

The request was made by Philip Frankfeld, secretary of the Communist Party here, who submitted to Charles Parker, secretary of the commission, a 32-page paper entitled "A Confession of Faith," purporting to set forth the Communists' position, purposes and aims.

It asked a probe of the Crusaders of New England, the Sentinels of the Republic, the Remnants of 1936, American Liberty League, Industrial Defense Association, Ku Klux Klan, the Silver Shirts and the Nazi Storm Troops which, the communication charged, are operating in Roxbury and Worcester.

The paper stated that the Communist Party has 1600 members in Massachusetts, although the party's gubernatorial candidate, Otis Hood, received slightly over [illegible] votes last fall.

Typhoon Toll 500 as Flames Hit Hong Kong

Hongkong, Sept. 2 (AP)—Fire, caused by a disastrous typhoon, raged through Hongkong today after a 125-mile-an-hour wind had taken hundreds of lives on shore and at sea.

The death toll, steadily rising, was believed to have passed 500. Officials expressed fear it would mount into thousands.

A wide area of this British colony was devastated and waist-deep in water.

Shipping suffered particularly heavily in the gale, one of the worst in Hongkong's history, because the harbor is thronged with refugee-laden ships from the Shanghai war zone, and steamers that have taken shelter from the Japanese coastal blockade.

REFUGEE SHIP SINKS

One of the foundered steamers was the liner Hunan, carrying 1200 Chinese refugees from the Shanghai sector.

The 4552-ton Dutch liner Van Heutsz was a total loss. Two of the largest ships in the harbor, the 18,765-ton Lloyd Triestino liner Conte Verde and the 16,975-ton Japanese liner Asama Maru, were swept ashore.

Two British ships, the Mausang and Boong Court, and the Chinese Quston were reported sunk.

The British steamers Lyeemoon, Kaigan and Kwangchow, the Norwegian freighter Produce and the Chinese Shengiee were pounded ashore.

British police and revenue officers, heroically forming a human lifeline strung together with ropes, rescued the crews of many smaller stranded ships and hundreds of Chinese refugees.

DEBRIS FILLS STREETS

The downtown area of Hongkong was demolished as completely as if it had been bombed. Streets were littered with the debris of shattered windows, collapsed walls, blown-down signs and the wrecks of automobiles.

Fifteen bodies were recovered from the fire caused by the gale. It was not known how many others were trapped in the flames and ruins of caved-in buildings.

Countless scores of small craft were tossed like chips against the seawall and those who made them their home were drowned.

Along the coast of Macao serious damage was done, particularly to the picturesque colony of boat dwellers.

The storm added horror to the city's battle against a cholera epidemic in which 219 died last week out of 374 reported cases. Communication with Shanghai were cut off.

Liner Rex Delayed By Typhoid Aboard

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Italian liner Rex arrived from Europe today with one case of typhoid aboard, the second ship within a week to come into port with the disease aboard.

The Rex notified the United States Public Health Service yesterday of the suspected case, and was held more than an hour at quarantine while the ship underwent examination.

Navy Men's Wives To Quit Shanghai

Shanghai, Sept. 2 (INS)—The United States supply ship Gold Star will sail for Japan tomorrow carrying the wives and families of officers and men of the United States Navy to safety, it was announced today.

The ship will call at Tsingtao and Chefoo to pick up any Americans wishing to be evacuated.

NO WINTER CUT DUE FOR WPA

Definite assurance that there would be no reduction in the Works Progress Administration personnel during the winter was received in Massachusetts today.

Notice of the plans to make employment during the winter permanent came in a letter from Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

From another source it was learned efforts would be made to increase the personnel as men are needed, and that those on city or town welfare rolls will be given first preference for any available work.

Dummy Bomb Falls On Duce's Street

Rome, Sept. 2 (AP)—A dummy bomb fell from a military plane today during a practice flight over Rome's suburbs and damaged a house at the end of the Via Nomentana, the street on which Benito Mussolini lives, but two miles from Il Duce's villa.

Henry Fonda's First Star Role on Stage

The new theatrical season in Boston, which bursts into such sudden and interesting life next week, contains among its initial items one play which no one, anywhere, has ever seen before. In other words we have in the opening of "Blow Ye Winds," in which Arthur Hopkins offers Henry Fonda as star at the Shubert Theater Tuesday evening, that exciting thing known as a "world premiere."

And when Mr. Fonda walks on the stage on Tuesday the moment will mark his emergence for the first time as a star of the speaking stage. Bostonians remember well his splendid performance in "The Farmer Takes a Wife" and in "Blow Ye Winds" he has another rich opportunity for a typical Fonda impersonation.

The Hayden Chase whom he plays in the new comedy is a [illegible] sailboat [illegible] the captain hates the sea. He [illegible] loving it even when he suddenly acquires another love in the person of Dr. Christine [illegible] [illegible] from New York.

[illegible] Valentine Davies has [illegible] a story that though it has the [illegible] quality of [illegible] much [illegible] into the psychology of [illegible]. The youthful hero and heroine see life through quite different [illegible] a seafaring skipper and a delightfully feminine doctor of philosophy [illegible] with the problem of love under these difficult circumstances is what Mr. Davies promises to [illegible].

Mr. Hopkins has had [illegible] [illegible] "Blow Ye Winds" [illegible] Mr. Davies [illegible] a setting in which [illegible] [illegible] Now that sort of thing is [illegible] in the movies. But a sailboat under sail on the stage!

Leading the support of Mr. Fonda as featured player is Doris Dalton, remembered for her work in "Petticoat Fever" and "Sweet Aloes" among nearly a hundred parts she has played in a busy career of six years. She played recently in the road tour of "Jane Eyre" with Katharine Hepburn. Miss Dalton hails from our own Beacon street and is a Wellesley graduate.

Others in the cast are [illegible] Carlson, [illegible] Murdock, Edgar Barrier, Mary [illegible], Blair Davies, James [illegible], Harry [illegible], Albert Hayes, Linda Lee Hill and Edwin [illegible].

DISCUSSING LOVE'S PROBLEMS

"Love Takes Flight" is the featured film on the first program of the new Hub Theater, opening today, and here you see Beatrice Roberts and Bruce Cabot having a little confab in this scene from the picture. The new Hub has been thoroughly renovated and now has the best of moving picture equipment for the showing of first run films.

'The Road Back' on Bowdoin Screen

"The Road Back," dramatic story of the men who came back and the women who waited, is being shown at the Bowdoin today and tomorrow. A featured cast includes John King, Richard Cromwell, Slim Summerville, Andy Devine, Barbara Read and Louise Fazenda.

"The Lady Escapes," domestic drama in which Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen are cast as a pair of rough-and-tumble sweethearts, presents among other things the technique of holding hands in the interval of [illegible].

Ethel Merman on Boston Stage

Gene Raymond, Harriet Hilliard, Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, Parkyakarkus and Joe Penner in RKO Radio's giant laugh riot, "The Life of the Party," is the screen attraction and exclusive and official motion pictures of the Joe Louis-Tommy Farr heavyweight championship fight is an added feature.

Dynamic rhythmic singing star of a score of motion pictures and musical revues, including among the latter "Anything Goes" and "Red, Hot and Blue," Miss Merman comes to the stage of the RKO Boston Theater fresh from her participation in the George Gershwin memorial concert at Lewisohn Stadium in New York and just prior to her departure for Hollywood where she will be featured with Carole Lombard and Fernand Gravet in Warner Bros. "Food for Scandal." Millions of stage, screen and radio fans are familiar with her inimitable singing voice and she will offer several numbers in her usual manner.

Marty May, popular radio and stage [illegible] and former star of Columbia Broadcasting System's "Maytime" program, is featured comedian and master of ceremonies of "Hollywood Hotel Revue of 1938." Hub theatergoers will remember him for his suave brand of comedy and his expert manner of introducing other members of his company.

These latter include Gale and Carson, mixed comedy team; Robert Baxter, promising young baritone; Clark and Eaton, sensational dancing team; Wilma Horner, specialty swing and jazz dancer; [illegible], novelty feminine acrobat; Maria Del Carmen, petite Spanish dancer, and [illegible], contralto. Chorus numbers will be performed by the 24 Hollywood Honeys, two dozen peaches from Cinemaland.

"The Life of the Party" is the story of a girl whose mother seeks to arrange her marriage to a wealthy man.

LOUELLA PARSONS-NEW FILMS-DRAMA NOTES

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Well, you take Mrs. Helen Watts Schreiber (she usta be the N. Y. American's "Prudence Penny") and it's a safe bet she's the most beer-minded gal in America . . . In fact, Mrs. Schreiber's just knocked out a brochure on beer that is quite somewhat and that tells you many more uses for the brew than that starting with just lifting a schooner and blowing off the suds . . . We were very astonished, for one thing, to discover you can make a swell soup with beer and that Danish roast beef is basted with dark brew and that a dish called "beer smothered celery" is something you mightn't write home for, but you'll also get 'late . . . This week, Helen whacked up a whole luncheon at N. Y.'s Waldorf-Astoria and all items on the card had beer in 'em, from the 1st course of Bohemian beer soup down to the beer spice cake dessert, with in-between items including toasted capon with beer sauce, that celery dish and a vegetable salad in beer jelly . . . When the guests finished, eat through, they almost had to lift an expert one of 'em (Oscar of the Waldorf) out of his seat with a block and tackle . . . So Mrs. Schreiber is pretty beer conscious . . .

FIDDLERS THREE

The point the reporters missed in their scrivenings on little Alan Tokman, the five-yr-old violin prodigy of Dorchester, is that Alan has a half sister who's a similar prodigy (and the two have never seen each other) . . . Elza Tokman, 11, is the dotter of Lewis Tokman also, by a previous marriage, but she's in Philly and even her Dad hasn't seen her since she was three . . . The girl is studying at Philly's Curtis Institute (special student of Efrem Zimbalist, the concertist) and she'll soon make a Carnegie Hall bow in N. Y. . . . At 3 months she wouldn't take her cod liver oil until her Pa fiddled . . . Now she probably wouldn't be bribed short of a symphony orch . . . After Brother Alan played for Jascha Heifetz, the lad wanted to wrestle the maestro . . .

A GUY NAMED JOE

Between two radio commitments, the Hub's good bandleader, Joe Rines, was chinning on Broadway with one of Variety's scribes when an agent came along . . .

"Hello Joe, what are you doing?" asks the agent.

"Nothing," sez Joe.

"Why don't you come up to the office and we'll put you under contract," invites No. 1.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

The Rep. Lawrence H. Davises (of Everett) became four Tue. when a lad arrived at Melrose Hosp. . . He'll be named for the papa (an all-scholastic footballer while at Everett High) and will be playmate for Helen, 14 mos., who out-boxed pneumonia a few weeks past . . . Jack White, N. Y.'s Club 18 zaney, made the swanky Town & Country mag. this month with his co-madman, Pat Harrington . . . Red-Headed Clara Bow (the ex-It gal) now in the restaurant biz . . . She and Husband Rex Bell (once of the film hoss-operas) have taken over the grill at Hollywood's Plaza . . .

* * *

Tanned like everything were Municipal Court Judges Joseph Riley, Dan'l J. Gillen and Francis J. Good when they returned from vacation this week . . . Holiday moods still on, 'em they tempered justice with mercy on the 1st day . . . We give you Dec. 19 as the date for the Jackie Coogan-Betty Grable nuptials . . . He's on the road with his orch. . . . Move afoot to have Sgt. Jas. V. Crowley (of the Hub sleuths) boosted to lieut. on his swell record for clipping public foes . . . He's had little time to study book law, but he's got the bad lads . . .

* * *

Mrs. Mollie Kirby, the Arch Inn's pretty hostess, keeping an operation date this week at a Somerville hosp . . . If Dusky Joe Louis accepts a bid made him by Johnny Stephon, the new Southland exec. mgr., he'll head an all-colored revue (with Bo-Jangles Bill Robinson and Blanche Calloway) at the Hub nitery . . . Rainer Gets Bernhardt Film Lead

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Sept. 2—Well, good day. Here I am back at the old typewriter. Dear me, Harriet hasn't dusted it since I left for Europe two months ago.

There isn't a pencil in sight and my desk is in chaos—but I will do my best. How will you have your news? On the American plan or served in my best European style?

Louella O. Parsons

Here's a tidbit I heard in Paris. Louis Verneuil, grandson-in-law of Sarah Bernhardt, has given Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer the privilege of filming the actress' life. He has also put himself under contract to write the story, putting at the disposal of the film company all of her letters, papers, et cetera. And Luise Rainer, Vienna's pride and joy, will play the divine Sarah. She ought to be ideal.

* * *

In case Ronald Colman is interested, RKO will offer him the whole studio, including the kitchen sink and that front gate that the gateman guards so zealously, to play opposite Katie Hepburn in "Bringing Up Baby." RKO has been frantic trying to find a vis-a-vis for Mrs. Hepburn's shy little daughter and I reckon Ronnie would be the answer to any movie maiden's prayer right at this moment.

* * *

My neighbor Joan Blondell was working in her garden yesterday instead of at the Warner studio. Seems Joan has been suspended for refusing to play the lead in "Swing Your Lady." She claims she hasn't had five minutes between pictures and is thoroughly exhausted and besides she doesn't like the story.

The studio maintains she must play the part—so there you are. Meanwhile, Pat O'Brien was taken out of "Swing Your Lady" to be Kay Francis' leading man in "Return From Limbo" and Humphrey Bogart was rushed in to take Pat's place. So Hal Wallis had himself a busy day.

* * *

If Columbia and Frank Capra settle that little suit for $100,000—although between you and me and the gatepost I don't think there is a chance of it being settled out of court—Capra plans to move to United Artists. He will direct "The Women" for Max Gordon. What a swell play it is and what a part for Claudette Colbert who will be real competition to Margalo Gillmore who created the role on the stage. Remember Capra directed Claudette in "It Happened One Night."

Shanghai Bombing In Newsreel

The recent bombing of the International Settlement at Shanghai is a feature of the Universal newsreel being shown at South Station Theater this week.

Cameramen Howard Winner and George Krainukov narrowly escaped death while shooting scenes in the heart of the shelling. Krainukov was wounded in the head by shrapnel while covering the bombing of the Cathay Hotel but kept his camera going with the result that 700 feet of the most remarkable war films ever photographed were secured. It was here that 1000 civilians were killed and 5000 injured.

THEY LOVED IN THE ORIENT

Loew's offers "The Good Earth" for the first time at popular prices tomorrow at both the Orpheum and the State and the above scene from the film, one of the most touching in the M-G-M masterpiece, shows Paul Muni and Luise Rainer, its two stars.

'Good Earth' Tops Bills At Loew's

"The Good Earth," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's greatest film achievement, will be shown for the first time at popular prices at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, beginning tomorrow.

Last year's Academy Award winners, Paul Muni and Luise Rainer, are co-starred in "The Good Earth," which is based on the best-selling novel by Pearl S. Buck.

Muni plays Wang, the impoverished Chinese farmer, and Miss Rainer, the slave-girl O-Lan, whom he marries, and who fights with him against locusts, against famine, against revolution.

Rainer does the finest work in her brilliant career as O-Lan, the long-suffering wife who works in the fields beside Wang, gives him sons and a daughter and restores his fortune when the famine ruins him.

The revolution brings unexpected wealth to Wang, destroying his ambition, his integrity and philosophy. He marries a younger woman only to discover bitterness and defeat when his eldest son falls in love with his new bride.

In the supporting cast are Walter Connolly, Tilly Losch, Charles Grapewin, Jessie Ralph and a group of Chinese players headed by Keye Luke, Soo Yong, Roland Lui and Suzanna Kim.

Supplementing this great feature is a selected list of short subjects headed by M. G. M.'s "Penny Wisdom," a Pete Smith specialty; a Silly Symphony, "Little Hiawatha," and newsreels.

Gayety's Bill

On the screen is "Woman Chases Man," featuring Miriam Hopkins.

GALA HOLIDAY BILL AT OLYMPIA

A gala double feature program of holiday entertainment is scheduled for patrons of the Washington Street Olympia with the new change of program, starting Saturday, and continuing through Tuesday.

"Wee Willie Winkie," screen picturization of Rudyard Kipling's famous adventure tale, featuring a superb cast headed by Shirley Temple and Victor McLaglen, and "Ever Since Eve," gay romantic comedy, co-starring Marion Davies and Robert Montgomery, will top the holiday week entertainment.

Heralded as Shirley Temple's most spectacular production "Wee Willie Winkie," reveals the thrilling adventures and romances encountered by Kipling's famed heroes in the heart of mighty and mystic India. The supporting cast includes C. Aubrey Smith, June Lang and Michael Whalen.

The associate attraction, "Ever Since Eve" presents two of filmdom's most versatile stars in one of the major laugh hits of the season supported by a host of topnotch comedians including Louise Fazenda, Allen Jenkins, Patsy Kelly and Frank McHugh.

Martha May Brown to Wed In Home Ceremony

By BETTY ALDEN

PLANS HAVE just been completed for the wedding a week from tomorrow of Martha May Brown daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Edwin Brown of Dedham, to James Otis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Otis of Marlborough street . . .

The ceremony will be performed at noon in the library of the Browns' home, with the Rev. Louis C. Dethlefs of Dedham officiating . . . Only the immediate families will be present at both the service and the small wedding breakfast which will follow immediately . . .

MRS. LAWRENCE COOLIDGE

The bride has chosen to have her sisters, Mrs. Douglas C. Grearson (Adelaide Brown) of Dedham, and Miss Betty Brown, as her only attendants, and Ralph Lowell of Westwood will perform the duties of best man . . . Owing to the simplicity of the wedding there will be no ushers . . .

Mr. Otis and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, following which they will live at 2 Chestnut street, Beacon Hill . . . The bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Luman S. Brown of Springfield and Daytona Beach, Florida . . .

Mr. Otis is a graduate of St. Mark's School and of Harvard with the class of 1920 . . . He later attended the Harvard Law School and is a member of the A. D. and Tavern Clubs . . . He is the brother of Miss Mary Otis . . .

* * *

As a delightful prelude to the annual fancy dress ball at the Wianno Club this coming Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell of Boston and Hyannisport, are giving a large cocktail party in the cocktail lounge of the Hyannisport Golf Club . . .

Pertzoff-Monks Ceremonies Picturesque

MOST OF THOSE who read that Olga Monks was having two wedding ceremonies for her marriage to Constantin A. Pertzoff yesterday, did not realize that both the bride and members of the wedding party were going to wear two different costumes . . . one for each of the ceremonial rites . . .

For the Russian Orthodox wedding at the Church of the Holy Trinity, the bride wore a very plain, long sleeved, white satin gown, the traditional symbol of simplicity and purity . . . Her veil of lace was very unpretentious and fastened to a coronet of artificial orange blossoms . . . The men wore unpretentious navy blue business suits . . . Guests at the early ceremony, which was marked by the ancient ritual of the old Russian church, included only the very closest relatives of the couple and a few members of the church . . .

The ceremony is quite different from the one used in most Christian churches today . . . A decided informality marked the first part . . . there was no wedding march and the bride casually met the bridegroom at the door leading into the rather small auditorium, which was banked with maple boughs and had green grass strewn on the floor . . . The couple walked a few steps into the church, which incidentally, has no pews . . . there, they were met by the priest who began the ceremony by asking if they would take each other as man and wife, etc. . . .

Following their affirmative responses, he preceded them a little further into the center of the church where the altar stood . . . There, lighted tapers were placed in the right hands of the bride and bridegroom . . . and the priest intoned the Russian ceremony with responses by the choir . . .

Two rings were used and placed on the right hands instead of the left, and symbolic crowns held over the heads of the couple by their respective brothers, Rev. George Gardner Monks, and Peter Pertzoff . . . At the climax of the ceremony the right hands of the bride and bridegroom were tied together with a white napkin and, as Father Gregorieff preceded them, they walked three times around the altar . . . Then, after more chanting by the choir the couple was pronounced man and wife . . .

Second Ceremony at Gardner Museum

ABOUT AN HOUR AND A HALF LATER the bride and bridegroom arrived at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, the palace in the Fenway built by the bride's great aunt, Mrs. Jack Gardner, dressed in different costumes . . . For the regular Episcopalian ceremony, Olga wore an exquisite Parisian dress of ivory satin clouded with an over skirt of delicate Brussels lace . . . the same heirloom lace fashioned her long voluminous veil which fell from a small halo cap . . . she wore a string of small graduated pearls . . .

The bridegroom and ushers had changed into impeccable formal morning attire, ascot ties, top hats and lily of the valley boutonnieres . . . From then on it was a conventional wedding ceremony from the first strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march, till the fashionable guests emerged from the palace to drive over to the wedding reception at the Monks residence on Commonwealth avenue . . .

Among the many guests at the second service were Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Gardner; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge with the former's mother, Mrs. James Sullivan, and Mr. Sullivan; Mrs. Lester Monks with her post debutante daughter, Caroline; Mrs. William E. Dexter, who wore a flowered chiffon gown with several strands of pearls and a large black hat, with Mrs. William H. Coolidge . . .

The bride's cousin, Louisa Vaughan, attended both ceremonies and was attractively dressed in a short sleeved green lame with a small veiled turban . . . Leslie Grinnell was also one who enjoyed the formal ritual of both ceremonies . . . Rose Loring came up from Pride's Crossing for the ceremony at the museum . . . and wore a colorful red, white and blue printed suit with a royal blue velour hat . . . and Mrs. Stedman Hanks, who is going to live in New York this coming winter, wore a sapphire blue velvet suit with a modish fall hat sweeping up on one side to reveal her beautiful silvery hair . . .

In all the ritual and formality of the occasion there was a homey sentimental note in the presence at the museum service of the coachmen and several of the servants who had been in Olga's grandfather's employ . . .

LOOKS EASY, BUT JUST TRY IT

MRS. FRANCIS P. SEARS of Hamilton tried her luck at hitting the nail on the head with a hammer, at a recent North Shore charity fete, but found it wasn't as easy as it looks. Her son, Francis P. (Bunny) Sears, Jr., was the most amused and interested of her spectators.

Benefit at Killion Home Aids Catholic Blind Guild

All good South Shorites came to the aid of the Catholic Guild for the Blind at the benefit at Mrs. Richard J. Killion's home on Countryway, Greenbush, last evening.

Movies, dancing and cards were the chief attractions with the crowd which milled about. Mrs. Killion, the evening's attractive hostess, was gowned in white sharkskin, its tiny jacket edged with a dainty piping of navy grosgrain.

Dr. Mary Moore Beatty, the power behind the throne in arranging the party, chose deep lavender crepe and Mary Culhane, who does her share of charity work, was smart in a white crepe sports dress. A multi-colored [illegible] completed the costume.

Reception committee with [illegible] Mary Beatty as its leader did a fine job passing trays of dainty sandwiches and cups of steaming coffee. Mary's bouffant frock combined two shades of old rose and her younger sisters, Bernadette and Patricia, were prettily attired in pastel shaded evening frocks.

Mrs. G. Frank Sullivan, her floral chiffon topped by a dark velvet beret, was called in to count the scores, her usual chore at the Sellie Philomathea parties. The older Philomathea group was well represented—Mrs. Daniel J. Holland, her black and red print topped by a large leghorn hat; Mrs. David Gentles, who wore soft powder blue beneath her white woolly coat, and Mrs. Henry Tougas, another member of the Philomathea board, topped her white lace jacketed frock with a capelet of white fur.

Most fortunate family on hand were the Gordons of West Medford. Both the mother, Mrs. J. C. Gordon, and her attractive daughter, Kay, carried off prizes. Mrs. Gordon's bolero frock of heavy white crepe was edged with bright green embroidery. Kay wore white accessories with her robin egg knit.

The young set slipped away from their waitress tasks to get in a few of the late swing steps. Eileen Biloudeau in a simple sports frock. Rita Bell sashed her aqua net with wide grosgrain.

Mrs. [illegible] Lynch, who never [illegible] efforts for the Guild or [illegible], played bridge with Mrs. Carrie McHugh, a [illegible] red hat [illegible]. Mrs. Thomas Donahue had large [illegible] flowers printed on her white chiffon.

Also glimpsed another trio of the Guild's staunch supporters: Mrs. Joseph Stanton wearing black with her tailored large shoulders; Mrs. Edward Gallagher, who motored over from Scituate for the benefit, and Mrs. Ethel Wiggins, a smart [illegible] adding accent to [illegible] squirrel jacket.

Lillian Taylor Plans Wedding

Lillian Elizabeth Taylor, whose engagement was announced in June via a dance at Charles River Country Club, has selected Saturday, September 11, as the date on which to become the junior Mrs. Norman Middleton Appleyard.

Rev. Russell Morrison Boynton performs the 3:30 o'clock ceremony in Newton's First Church.

Barbara Squire of Newton will be honor maid and among the attendants will be [illegible] Cate, Louise Mason, Mrs. Ernest Casperson, Ruth Thompson, Patricia and Priscilla Taylor, sisters of the bride-elect, and Elizabeth Green.

Victor Appleyard of Lynn will be best man for his cousin.

H. E. Stearns Weds

Mrs. Elizabeth Chalifoux Chapin of Locust Valley, Long Island, N. Y., was married Monday afternoon to Harold E. Stearns of New York and Paris, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns of Boston. The ceremony was performed at Mrs. Chapin's Locust Valley home in the presence of the immediate families and a few intimate friends. The bride was attended by her daughter, Elizabeth Chapin, and her son, Coolidge Chapin.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chalifoux of Boston. Her marriage to [illegible] Mead Chapin, which took place at Lowell in May, 1911, was terminated by divorce in Chicago in 1931. Mr. Stearns, who graduated from Harvard College in 1912, is a critic and author. For 15 years he lived in Paris. His first wife died a year after they were married, leaving a son, Philip Stearns.

After a short automobile trip Mr. and Mrs. Stearns will make their home at Locust Valley, Long Island.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS P. CLARK of New York and his brother, John H. Clark of New York and Newport, R. I., flew to Bermuda for a vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Clark, who were married last May, are planning to stay in Bermuda a month. Mrs. Clark is the former Nathalie [illegible], daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Tuttle [illegible] of Hamilton. Mr. Clark is the son of Mrs. J. Francis A. Clark of Newport.

Miss Adams Engaged

Professor and Mrs. John Chester Adams of New Haven, Conn., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Munger Adams, to John Gedney Cushman, son of Mrs. Charles F. Cushman of Cambridge and the late Mr. Cushman.

Miss Adams, who is a member of the Junior League, attended Miss Day's School and Smith College. Mr. Cushman, who prepared for college at schools in Montclair, N. J., and Andover, graduated with the class of 1925 from Harvard where he was on the Crimson. He is a member of the Spee Club, Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770 and the Speakers Club.

CHAPTER 34
By MAY CHRISTIE

Niklas had the uncanny faculty of reading her mind. He said quickly. "I assure you there will be no possibility of a repetition, marquise."

"Just the same, I should like to resign."

"No! No! Think of the investment I have at stake. You and you only are the attraction at the club. Without you we would be forced to close."

He leaned forward, tapping the small table. "I will raise your salary to $100 a week, marquise. That is a bargain!"

"I — don't — know"—dubiously. "I'm—nervous."

"Naturally. But"—ingratiatingly—"you shall have no further cause for alarm. I shall engage for you an excellent French maid who will sleep at your apartment, and take good care of you.

Toni was still apathetic.

"If the Pastoral Fete on New Year's Eve brings a large crowd to the club, then your salary will be raised again," wheedled Niklas.

Yet recent happenings told her to resign.

But that would mean the giving up of her apartment on Park Avenue that Guy had not yet seen. She wanted him to come there!

"Very well. I'll stay till after the New Year."

Niklas seemed relieved.

"And now," said Toni, rising, "if you don't mind, I'd like to go back to New York."

"Too late, my dear marquise. The small room next to Mademoiselle Fifi"—one of the entertainers—"has been got ready for you, since, no doubt, you do not wish to return to your former room."

"But I'd rather leave. I can't sleep a wink if I stay here."

"Pardon, and a thousand apologies, marquise, but the car is not here. I ordered Lavoff—" He paused.

"Exactly. It is a long way."

Two men rounded the corner of the big house. Between them they were carrying something long and heavy, completely swathed in a blanket. Could it be Lola?—she wondered.

The light struck their faces as they moved toward the drive.

Niklas with Lavoff, the chauffeur! Where were they taking the poor creature? Was she—dead?

Hadn't she been assured the car was already gone?

Presently Toni heard the faint hum of the engine, the car gliding down the drive.

Then it vanished into the highway.

"As we are two derelicts in the big city, what do you say we dine together on Christmas Day, marquise?"

"On Christmas Day you would like to dine here?"

"Heavens, no! It's a 'home' day. I shall dine with you at your apartment," said Guy.

"But I'm paid to come here—"

"Oh, I'll fix that with Niklas," he told her masterfully.

Her presents for her fellow-workers were all ready and wrapped. She had bought for old Bridget, the fruit vender, a warm robe.

"I've been hearing strange things of your club, miss. Queer goings-on! Will you keep a watchful eye on yourself?"

"Of course I shall. But it's a beautiful club, Bridget. We're giving a grand party on New Year's Eve."

"No doubt. But be careful, honey! Shure I'm praying the saints'll watch over you!"

[illegible] with the Ace and [illegible] North cashed the Ace and [illegible] Dummy's King covered and South ruffed. South decided there was a good chance that North had a singleton club and therefore now [illegible] the suit.

Declarer discarded his remaining spade, then took out the trumps ending in dummy and discarded a losing diamond on dummy's remaining club. Putting a spade to re-enter his own hand declarer was then faced with the guess in the diamond suit. He had already lost three tricks.

North had shown up with five spades to the A Q J 9. Yet he had passed to South's two club bid. Holding the Ace of diamonds in addition to this good spade suit would he not have [illegible] his major suit particularly in a match point duplicate game?

Certainly, a pass would have been inconceivable.

Refrigerator Is Health Factor

This [illegible] a great change [illegible] very wealth.

It has made possible the preservation of food and the avoidance of contamination and [illegible] age. This means the protection of the health of every member of the family.

Everyone knows the dangers of warm temperature [illegible] its effect upon perishable foods. When these are allowed to decompose, [illegible] or poisons are produced. These poisons are just as dangerous as those which are traced to the germs of infectious diseases.

The refrigerator also protects food from contamination by dust, flies and other insects which may carry the germs of serious ailments. Nothing can be worse to [illegible] than [illegible] food in the open.

By refrigeration the foodstuffs are kept at a regulated and even temperature, about 50 degrees F. or less.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

SOME STYLE NOTES ON YOUR FIGURE

Beauty Problem

DEAR ARLINE GOULD: I have a flabby double chin. Some time ago you wrote of a muscle tightener, for such a throat as mine. I have always been sorry that I did not write to you at that time. Can you recall the name of this cream? I think you said it contained a liberal amount of balsam and astringent properties. K. M., Dorchester.

* * *

DEAR K. M.: I am sorry but I will have to ask you to write in again as I cannot give trade names in the column. Yes indeed this muscle tightener is the thing to correct double chin and flabby throat. Many use it also to correct and prevent puffiness under the eyes. Remember to enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope when writing or you may phone me at Liberty 4000.

JENNEY
Solvenized

Here's why you get

More Mileage with Jenney Gasoline

● Ever since there have been automobiles JENNEY Gasoline has been as fine as any that could be made. Now it is even better—improved with the exclusive Solvenized process—the greatest gasoline improvement in ten years.

Solvenized is the patented process which prevents formation of hard carbon in a motor, and so gives you the full mileage your car can produce. All good gasolines have good mileage built into them. The trouble is they invariably build up hard carbon in your motor, which destroys mileage.

JENNEY is the only gasoline in New England which uses the Solvenized process to prevent accumulation of hard carbon. Use JENNEY regularly and the hard carbon previously built up in your motor will be steadily attacked and softened so it can be blown out the exhaust. In a few hundred miles your valves can seat firmly and your piston rings seal tightly. This restores compression which steps up power and mileage.

We can perhaps protect our nationals sufficiently without tangling ourselves in the complex nets of international policy, the freedom of the seas, all that sort of thing.

Smashed Ideals Must Be Rebuilt by Nations

For three hundred years the attempt in international relations has been to set up codes by which the rights of both belligerents and neutrals can be safeguarded. War indeed was war but modified by what passed for a civilized code.

Today in Spain and China war is obviously more horrible than ever before without a single modification by a code which the fighting nations will recognize. [illegible] the dreadful German phrase [illegible] become the rule of the game.

Today, three hundred years after Hugo Grotius's book of 1625, we have to start all over again to try in the midst of anarchy to build up once more the smashed ideals of international relationships even in time of war.

Lou Gehrig, the iron man of the Yankees, picked up two checks this week but hurled 'em both back at the pitcher. Lou lectured as a "professor" at Columbia University's Baseball School and was rewarded with a check. He returned it saying he was a Columbia man and happy to appear gratis. Lou received another check from his radio sponsor for the broadcast on which the slugger pulled his well-known boner by naming the wrong breakfast food. He returned this one also. The sponsor returned the check with a letter saying every ball player is entitled to three strikes—so this time Lou banked it.

Gehrig Returns Radio Check

Phil Handler of the Chicago Football Cardinals are going strong for Southwest conference material this year. Eleven stars from that territory are getting trials. Lou Gehrig has hit 23 homers with the bags loaded—five this season. Harry Markson, boxing expert of the Bronx Home News, goes into the 20th Century organization as assistant to publicity chief, Walter St. Denis. Can't always go by a name, Gents. A hoss named Saparou won his second in a row at Detroit yesterday, and paid $1180. Somebody asked Tommy Farr what he thought of Joe Louis' punches. "If I'd seen 'em coming," replied the Welshman, "I wouldn't have got in the way of 'em, you bet."

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Mel Ott and Hal Schumacher, Giants—Former's homer with two on clinched 7—3 defeat of Cardinals, latter blanked Cards in seven of nine innings, gave nine hits.

Wally Moses, Athletics—Homer with two on brought A's out of cellar with 5—2 victory over Browns.

Paul Derringer, Reds, and Lou Fette, Bees—Former turned in six hitter in winning opener, 5—1, latter held Reds to eight hits and drove in clinching runs as he won 16th game, 4—1.

Max Butcher, Dodgers—Two inning relief job stopped Cubs, 6—4.

Hal Trosky and Denny Galehouse, Indians—Former led 10-hit attack with three singles and scored two runs, latter held Yanks to seven hits in 4—2 victory.

Wes Ferrell, Senators—Blanked Tigers for first seven innings and allowed five hits in 8—2 triumph.

Mat Results

Boston (Arena)—Paul Adams, Georgia, awarded third fall and match over Ted Germaine, South Boston, when latter was disqualified for roughness. Each had earned a fall.

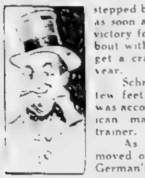
Max Schmeling Had Dope on Louis — Knew Champ Would Avoid 1937 Bout

By JACK CONWAY



MAX SCHMELING is deeply disappointed because he will not receive an opportunity to knock out Joe Louis next month, but he is not surprised that he has been sidestepped by the champion. Schmeling knew as soon as Louis' right hand was raised in victory following the latter's dull 15-round bout with Tommy Farr that he would not get a crack at the "Brown Bomber" this year.

Schmeling was sitting in a press seat a few feet to my left during the bout. He was accompanied by Joe Jacobs, his American manager, and Max Machon, his trainer.

As the crowd booed the decision, I moved over next to Schmeling to get the German's reactions to the bout. Max was more serious than usual. I asked him what he thought of Louis' showing. Before he answered this question he stated he would require the full support of the American press to get Louis into a ring with him

"After tonight's showing, Louis will try to give me the run-around again," said Schmeling. "Before the bout there was talk Louis would meet me in October. Not now. They will be afraid I would knock Louis out."

"Would you knock Louis out?" I pressed

"Quicker than I did last time," was the quick answer. In three or four rounds. Louis cannot box. He is easy to hit with a right hand, and he does not take a blow very well. He must hit an opponent with his terrific right hand punch to look impressive. If you move on Louis like Farr did, you don't get hit

"Mark my words. Louis will now refuse to meet me. It will be necessary for the press to force the champion to sign, if I am ever to get a chance at the title."

Joe Jacobs was also downcast over Louis' failure to knock Farr out quickly

If Louis had belted Farr out in two or three rounds, the champion's managers would have felt he also could have beaten Schmeling, and they would have made the match for October," said Joe. "They now know better than anybody else that Schmeling is a cinch to knock out Louis, and they will try to delay the bout as long as possible."

Schmeling and Jacobs had the correct size-up of the situation, as Louis, through his management, has since announced he will take a two-months layoff. The outdoor season will then be over, which means it will be impossible to stage a Louis-Schmeling tussle before June of next year.

These indoor matches proved very profitable affairs for the New York Garden. Jim Maloney and Jack Delaney hold the record for indoor receipts. Back in the winter of 1927 they drew $177,000 in the New York Garden. Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney later drew $160,000 indoors, while the Sharkey-McTigue match netted $125,000. The Rickard heavyweight elimination shows drew anywhere from $50,000 to the record Maloney-Delaney gate of $177,000.

Mike Jacobs will have Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock clash in the first of their elimination bouts in the New York Garden on October 29. Tommy Farr, Al McCoy, Nathan Mann, and other heavyweight hopefuls will later be moved into the New York fistic picture

The most Mike Jacobs can hope of Max Schmeling is

By BOB CONSIDINE

New York, Sept. 2 (INS)—This fellow Baron Gottfried von Cramm, who is a pretty good even money bet to win our national singles tournament, which opens today at Forest Hills, is a kind and a rather soulful looking gentleman. Louis' Victory Colorless

[illegible]

Louis did too much waiting for spots for his right hand. He refused to try to make an opening by [illegible] with both hands to head and body like Jack Dempsey used to do when champion.

As title holder, Louis has become over cautious. He was a safety first champion against Farr. When he realized he couldn't knock Farr out he made a boxing match out of it. Joe's hard left jabs were more effective than Farr's light taps. This is why the officials rightfully voted for the champion.

Louis will probably engage in one or two indoor bouts, but it is a cinch his opponents will be carefully selected. Max Schmeling and Tommy Farr will not be on the list.

CUBS MUST WIN FOR GRIMM

By BILL CORUM

New York, Sept. 2 (INS)—I'm not going to write much today. It's getting too close to Labor Day. There's a holiday for you. Celebrating having to work. The guy that thought that one up must have been short on imagination.

Even John L. Lewis must know it's a sucker racket—this business of working. Always wanted to organize a union myself, to picket the pickets.

"These pickets unfair to organized pickets," or something like that. It would be good fun, and if the idea was extended to its logical limits it soon would have everybody out in the fresh air. You can't beat fun, and fresh air. Or so I've heard.

I think labor's wonderful—for the other fellow. Personally, I have always succeeded in finding something more pleasant to do.

Funny about life. We live and don't learn. We're so much smarter when we're born than at any other time. We come into it laughing and cooing and go out worrying and complaining. It seems hard for folks to realize that in the end every man winds up a king—King Tut.

A lot of men in their 60s are trying to worry themselves to death about the income tax 10 years from now. Not me. If Mr. Roosevelt hasn't got the budget balanced by the time I get to heaven, it's his headache.

No doubt the budget is a tough problem. So's the rhumba. All I'm saying is that you'll have more fun trying to figure out the rhumba. Especially in the right sort of company.

Which doesn't have an earthly thing to do with Bill Terry signing that contract with the Giants. I was just trying to get started. You've got to swing a few bats before you can walk up there and take your cut at Carl Hubbell's boss best pitch.

LET'S WIN THAT FLAG

Terry's best pitch seems to have been five years at better than $40,000 a year, poor fellow. He should have held out for Cleveland and got Lake Erie as a bonus.

They said Alva Bradley who owns the Cleveland team, was willing to give William forty thousand. But they didn't say forty thousand what. Still, Cleveland's a great town in which to manage a ball team. That is if you're deaf, can't read, and just don't give a hang.

Managers go through Cleveland like Ringling Brothers—once a year. Which may explain why the team is known as the Indians. There's a manager's scalp for every fan in town.

The reason Cleveland would have been a logical spot for Terry is that it is such a short walk from there to his home in Memphis, Tenn. He could have made it in a night and day without ever having to make himself look [illegible] an umpire by jerking his thumb over his shoulder. Picture William somewhere in Ohio, trying to imitate Bill Klem!

Seriously, Terry's signing was a good break for the New York club, the National League and our town. Bill may not be the best manager in the Ford C. Frick loop, but the book says so. And the scoreboard. Which is where they pay off. A lot of us have tried to go behind the scoreboard at various times and for various reasons. None ever has succeeded.

It also strikes me as the shrewdest sort of move on the part of Horace Stoneham to get the Terry contract situation publicly settled at this time. The Giants are about ready to start west on the trip that will decide, for good and all, their pennant chances.

They not only have an even chance to win; they have the best chance of any team in the league. In such a situation it is important for Terry and the players to know where they "are at." Also important that Boss Bill be in a position to concentrate on the job at hand. The job of winning another pennant and providing another five-cent World Series.

HAVE THE BEST OF IT

This public announcing of Terry's signing may be the bold stroke that will decide the issue in another head-and-head National League finish. Bill Terry isn't one to worry unduly over his future. (Not with what he has in the bank against a moist mananya, which means tomorrow in Spanish, no matter how I spell it.)

Still, even he will be a better manager in the next few weeks for knowing that he is to be a Giant for several seasons to come. It gives him and the New York team an advantage over Charley Grimm and his curious Chicago Cubs. The chances are Grimm is out if the Cubs don't get in—the World Series. The further chance is that Grimm knows it.

That's something in favor of the New Yorkers now. Another something in their favor is the schedule. While the Giants toy with the Phils and Brooklyn, Grimm's gang must fight it out toe-to-toe with the Cardinals and Pirates. The Cards and Bucs will be fighting for the difference between third and fourth world series money. Whereas the Brooks and Phillies will be "fighting" to get back home and forget.

Thus, win or lose now, the Giants have no alibi. They're sitting in the driver's seat. All they need do is head for the flag, and never look back. That, and a little of the luck that never seems to desert them, should tell the tale. Probably will.

RANGER Clinches TROPHY

BUT IS PRESSED BY RAINBOW

Marblehead, Sept. 2 (AP)—Chandler Hovey's light-wind sloop Rainbow, 1934 defender of the America's Cup, gave the almost invincible Ranger one of the closest races of the season, and after leading twice finished second, less than two minutes astern of Ranger in a breeze so light the course was cut to 12 miles.

Victor in more than two dozen races this year, Ranger made it four straight in the series of five races for the town of Marblehead trophy. But anything except a victory for Harold S. Vanderbilt's current cup defender would have been a rank upset.

Originally the Eastern Yacht Club's race committee scheduled a triangular course of 24 miles but after the five sloops had taken more than three hours to reach the first mark, 12 miles to windward, it became apparent the full course could not be completed in the 5-hour 20-minute time limit and the contest was ended.

YANKEE WAY BACK

The race early developed into one sailing duel between Ranger and Rainbow, and another between the two Endeavours with which T. O. M. Sopwith sought vainly to lift the America's Cup.

Endeavour I, the boat Rainbow whipped in 1934, finished third, about 13½ minutes behind Ranger but more than a minute and a half ahead of Sopwith's second challenger Endeavour II, which came in fourth.

Rainbow did surprisingly well in a breeze so light it only occasionally rippled the water, and there were times when it appeared she would crack Ranger's monotonous string of victories. However, the Vanderbilt sloop, as usual, eventually asserted her claim to being the fastest of her class ever built.

RANGER HAS 24 POINTS

By her fourth win, Ranger now has 24 points, to 18 for Endeavour II, 15 for Rainbow, 13 for Yankee, and nine for Endeavour I.

Since the winner receives six points, the best Sopwith can do is tie Ranger, and then only if Ranger for some unknown reason should fail to start in today's concluding contest.

In the point system on which the Marblehead trophy is being decided, an entry receives one point for starting, and that would insure Ranger's taking the silver punch bowl.

Eight Teams in Softball Tourney

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP)—Eight teams, five in the women's division and three men's clubs, have qualified for the annual national championship soft-ball tournament which opens at Soldier Field, September 10.

The National Manufacturing Girls of Cleveland, will defend the title in their section, and the Kodak Parks of Rochester, N. Y., will be after their second straight men's championship.

Qualified in the women's division through winning state or metropolitan titles were the Langley Cleaner Girls of Toronto, Montgomery V-Eights of Chicago, runner-up to Cleveland for the 1936 championship; Geyer Springs Girls, Little Rock, Ark.; Capper Girls, Topeka, Kan., and Kaufmann's Maids, Reading, Pa.

Mellon Faced Heavy Pressure

George Rothwell Brown, noted columnist for the Hearst newspapers, enjoyed a close personal acquaintance with Mr. Mellon that began when the latter entered President Harding's cabinet in 1921.

CHAPTER FIVE

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

(Copyright, 1937, by Boston Evening American)

Certainly he possessed the best legal mind in the party. Naturally Harding turned to him for advice, and for the additional reason that he knew that if Mr. Knox had but said the word he, and not Harding, probably would have been the candidate of the Chicago convention.

They were deeply in debt, and many billions which the United States had poured out to the Allies during the war, and to all the nations, including the late enemies after the war, were owing to them.

MELLON KNOX'S CHOICE

Knox knew that problems of finance would be of paramount importance to the government for a generation, and when Mr. Harding took up with him the question of the formation of his cabinet the Pennsylvania senator recommended the appointment of Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh as Secretary of the Treasury.

It is a part of the tradition of Washington that when the name of the world's greatest industrial banker was mentioned, Mr. Harding asked:

"Who is Andrew W. Mellon?"

If the incident really occurred, Mr. Mellon himself never knew it and those who were closest to him do not believe it.

What certainly is true is that Mr. Mellon, at the time, was not known as Mr. Morgan and Mr. Rockefeller were known throughout the land. So far as the public were concerned, he had successfully maintained the obscurity which he had sought.

Harding knew that Knox had made his recommendation from a profound knowledge. He sent for Mr. Mellon, and Mellon went out to Marion, where after a very brief conversation the tender of the Treasury portfolio was made to him.

WEIGHED CABINET POST

He did not accept it, but Mr. Harding, who did not understand his mild-mannered and non-committal guest very well, believed that he had, and thought it was all settled.

Mr. Mellon returned to Pittsburgh very much disturbed. He had never sought a public office and the thought of doing so had never even entered his mind.

The idea of tearing up all his roots in Pittsburgh, of leaving the manifold business activities, was repugnant. He was deeply attached to his home.

While figuring in his own mind how he could avoid accepting Harding's invitation to enter the cabinet, his old friend and lawyer, Judge Reed, father of David Reed, who was afterwards United States senator, said to him one day that there was a statute enacted in 1789, under which he would be ineligible to the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, because of his connections with finance and industry.

"BARRED" BY LAW

It was a law which, if narrowly interpreted would prevent a president from naming to the head of the treasury anybody above the economic standing of Huckleberry Finn's father.

Overjoyed to find that there was such a law, which would enable him to remain on his job in Pittsburgh without appearing to shirk a public duty, Mr. Mellon hurried off with the news to Phil Knox. Here was a fine way out!

Senator Knox listened, and when Mellon asked him to communicate with Mr. Harding, and say that he could not accept, he refused to do it. Mr. Mellon owed a duty to the country. As for the statute, it had been construed a hundred times in such a way as would make it clear that Mr. Mellon would be eligible by resigning his various corporate connections.

This left Mr. Mellon with no excuse, and so, reluctantly, he agreed to accept a post in which he was to make some of his greatest triumphs, and from which he was to learn some of the bitterest lessons of the extent to which ingratitude can fall.

Mr. Harding was still in Marion, on the eve of leaving for St. Augustine, Fla., when, early in February news of his Cabinet "slate" began to leak out, as such news invariably does. It was rather accurate news, since it included Charles E. Hughes as secretary of state and John W. Weeks as secretary of war. Weeks wanted to be secretary of the Treasury himself.

He had been a Boston banker, had studied the refunding of the war debts—and having been originally a backer and a supporter of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois as candidate for President, had supported Harding when Lowden and Wood reached their dramatic deadlock in the Chicago convention.

WEEKS AS WAR HEAD

Mr. Weeks was an able man, and subsequently made an excellent secretary of war, but it cannot be doubted that, whatever else history and faction may say of Warren G. Harding, his steadfast determination to put Andrew W. Mellon at the head of the Treasury was a wise and patriotic thing for which he deserves unlimited credit.

Every newspaper in the country clamored for information about this remarkable man from Pittsburgh. It was declared that with his family he controlled $1,613,674,464, and that he was an officer and director in corporations having assets of $[illegible]. There were but a few lines about him in Who's Who.

Not foreseeing what he would be called upon to endure, by devoting his time and talents to the services of his government and the American people, Mr. Mellon prepared to go to Washington.

To require him at this time to turn his back upon Pittsburgh was like asking Aladdin to give up his wonderful lamp.

ON TREASURY JOB

So to Washington rather sadly he went, to work at a job whose salary meant nothing to him, to slave at it from early morning until late at night, harder than any clerk in his employ was called upon to labor.

He took his daughter with him, and she, at 18, became the head of his household, and quickly enough thereafter one of the acknowledged belles of the city. His only son, Paul, was away at school.

He must have sighed as he recalled what he had told Mr. Harding that day, in Marion:

"I should greatly prefer that you would get somebody else."

However, here was the job, waiting to be done. Mr. Harding was inaugurated on the fourth of March. The names of the cabinet were sent to the Senate, and promptly confirmed.

Bank Clearings Off 10.1 P. C. From 1936 Week

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities totaled $5,254,337,000 in the week ended September 1, a decline of 10.1 per cent from $5,842,270,000 in the comparable week a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. This was the first time in six weeks that transactions fell below those of a year ago.

In the preceding week clearings in the same cities were 6.2 per cent ahead of the 1936 period.

The turnover at New York City of $3,216,859,000 represented a loss of 16.9 per cent from $3,871,534,000 last year. The total at outside centers of $2,037,478,000 was 3.4 per cent better than the aggregate of $1,970,736,000 cleared last year.

In the few instances where declines were registered at outside centers the amount was small, whereas several cities reported substantial increases, including Minneapolis 25.3 per cent; Cleveland 19.9; Richmond 18.2, and Pittsburgh 14.4.

The turnover at Chicago was $307,500,000, an increase of 6.5 per cent over $288,600,000 a year ago.

Bank of France Cuts Rate to 3 1-2 Per Cent

Paris, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Bank of France lowered its discount rate today from 4 to 3½ per cent.

The easing of credit from the previous rate, fixed Aug. 3, was accepted in financial quarters to mean the government was returning to a policy of easy money and no longer felt obliged to impose high interest to prevent speculation and the flight of capital from the country.

The rate on 30-day loans was also lowered from 4 to 3½ per cent and interest on loans made on stock security dropped from 5 to 4½ per cent.

The reductions, relieving business of higher interest charges, followed by a day the completion of Finance Minister Georges Bonnet's financial reconstruction program under dictatorial decree powers.

OUTLOOK For Copper GOOD

KELLEY'S VIEWS OPTIMISTIC

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1937, by Boston Evening American

New York, Sept. 2—C. F. Kelley, president of the Anaconda Copper Company, told me that at last the continued high consumption of electric power is beginning to reflect itself in copper buying by the public utility industry.

"The high level of electric power consumption," the executive pointed out, "is beginning to make itself felt in the release of capital for needed maintenance and improvement programs of public utility companies.

"Normally the largest user of copper, the light and power industry in recent years has held capital outlays to a minimum. The latest need for significant tonnages of copper which exists in this field will soon require satisfaction—whether financed by private or public credit."

BROADER OUTLOOK

"The outlook for the copper industry in the United States for the remainder of 1937 is distinctly favorable. In general, good business is anticipated this fall and winter. Copper will share in the general improvement and will probably show for 1937 domestic consumption of primary copper in excess of that in 1929.

"Present trends in home construction are favorable to the copper industry. Newly developed sheet copper roofing has met with encouraging acceptance.

"This year for the first time copper shielding is being used to a great extent as a protection against the invasion of termites, which are causing property losses to owners of real estate in this country of more than $50,000,000 annually, according to government statistics.

"Continued metallurgical research is developing new copper alloys and new variations of existing alloys which are constantly expanding the field of usefulness for copper in industry, the home and the arts."

Referring to the economic battle against the waste of rust, Mr. Kelley added:

"The fact that rust in this country costs property owners more than a thousand million dollars annually, or a total greater than the interest on the national debt, is causing builders increasingly to specify materials that will last—such as copper for flashings, gutters and downspouts, brass and copper piping, solid brass and bronze hardware and lighting fixtures, bronze screens and bronze or copper for hot water storage tanks.

"Indicative of this trend to build more than ever for durability and economy of maintenance is a new all-time high in 1936, and again in 1937, in the use of brass and copper piping in plumbing and heating systems—this in spite of the relatively light amount of new construction."

OVERSEAS PROSPECTS

"Outside the United States the consumption of copper for all peace time uses has shown a remarkable increase in recent years, establishing new high records and indicating for 1937 a material excess over last year.

"This demand is accentuated by the use of copper for munitions, which, while probably large, is of secondary importance to the industry.

"A world at peace improves its facilities for industrial production, creates a higher standard of living and a far greater per capita consumption of copper for useful purposes.

"A significant development abroad is the evident effort of producers to regulate production to consumptive demand, producing all the copper required, but avoiding the accumulation of burdensome stocks; thus creating a basis for stabilization and continued prosperity for the entire industry."

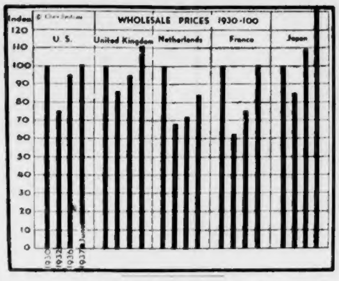
WHOLESALE PRICES



A comparison of wholesale prices in various countries reveals a similarity in upward movements this year. Wholesale prices in Japan are more than 21 per cent above 1930 base prices and 20 per cent above average 1936 prices.

Wholesale prices in the Netherland are still 15 per cent below 1930 prices while in the United States and France they are as approximately 1930 levels. In England prices have climbed to 11 per cent above the 1930 average and more than 16 per cent above average 1936 prices.

Sugar Deliveries Show Gain

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Total sugar deliveries for the first seven months of this year were 3,964,131 tons, a gain of 26,779 tons over the like period last year.

The agricultural Department reported today that refiners supplied 2,002,176 tons during the January-July period this year, beet sugar factories 684,055 tons, importers 127,677 tons and Louisiania and Florida cane sugar mills 71,657 tons.

Stocks of sugar on July 31 were equal to 1,344,041 short tons, raw value, compared with 1,473,430 on the same date last year.

BACHE'S Remark STUDIED

HANEY DISAGREES

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 2 — Mr. Jules S. Bache, well known stock broker and director of important concerns, has just returned from a trip abroad and as usual under the circumstances has been interviewed by enterprising reporters.

As is not quite so usual in such cases, Mr. Bache said some interesting things. One of his remarks, however, invites more careful appraisal, namely this:

"People will not gain much by criticizing Washington. Things are never as bad or as good as they appear."

As to the latter observation, it can be inferred that "things" can therefore always be better than they are. And if they are to be as good as they can be something is required to motivate a change. This is where criticism may enable people to gain something.

In fact, while agreeing with Mr. Bache's other observations, I say that the people of a government who cannot gain anything worthwhile by criticizing the things that seem to them bad in their government, are in a dangerous position. It has been an earmark of dangerous dictatorships that they do not tolerate criticism.

ONE WEAKNESS

One of the weaknesses of our economic and business situation today is that the government seeks to control it and at the same time resents the criticisms of those who honestly differ in principle as to what should be done. The way to get business favors from the government is to "yes" it.

I hold that there should be no question either of gain or loss as a result of criticism of Washington insofar as the direct personal fortunes of the critic are concerned. (Of course, I assume that the criticisms sincere and decent.)

But what do we see? We find that today various special interests and pressure groups are getting loans, subsidies and bonuses. Above all, we find that the government itself proceeds to break down criticism of its policies by distributing funds for post offices, swimming pools, etc., in various localities.

The new cotton loan and subsidy are good illustration. The government is about to lend 9 cents a pound at low interest rates. And to those cotton farmers who will accept its dictation as to planting next season, it will also give a subsidy on 65 per cent of the crop.

One reply to the remark about criticism is that if not much is to be gained thereby it is because the government forestalls the result by buying votes.

Back of this whole matter lies the question of motivating economic action, or making people do the most economical things. What I want to know is this: If the government is to run business, how can it succeed without criticism?

RUSSIAN SITUATION

Isn't that one thing that ails Russia today? There they are "purging" their society of critics. They find their agriculture and industry doing so poorly that under their dictatorial setup, the easiest course seems to be to force citizens to act according to some central plan, under penalty of death.

My one great criticism of the New Deal is that it refuses to put economic policies and values to an objective test. By this, I mean that it seeks to allow the ideas or wishes of one man to decide. It does this instead of allowing the ideas and wishes of different individuals to compete, so that a generally recognized decision may be attained.

How can we know what the test price of cotton is? Only by finding out what a free and open market records as to how much buyers are willing and able to pay, and what sellers are able to get.

What saved us further waste on the Passamaquoddy Dam and that western tree belt? It was criticism.

What has prevented the complete packing of the Supreme Court? It has been criticism.

Grain Markets Listless at Start

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP)—The grain markets were listless at the start of trading today. Traders were apparently awaiting issuance of private crop reports at 10 a. m. Easiness of the Liverpool market was another discouraging factor.

Wheat opened ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, September 1.03⅞-04, December 1.05⅞-06, and then showed a little strength. Corn started 1⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, September 94-94⅛, December 62⅛-⅝, and later also showed some strength.

U. S. Travel Abroad Higher Last Year

American travelers spent approximately $500,000,000 in foreign lands during 1936, the largest sum since the 1929 total of $821,000,000, the Commerce Department announced. Canada was listed as the chief interest to the American tourist during 1936, with $228,000,000 spent there.

N.E. Trade Reports Dull

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Current weekly reviews of New England business conditions are colorless although not depressing. Retailers are busy supplying needs of returning school children but wholesale trade is only fair and manufacturing still tends slightly downward. If these highlights on trade taken from the Dun & Bradstreet report are duplicated in many other sections it is easy to understand the heaviness in securities markets.

All divisions of the local wool trade—raw markets, tops, carpet wools and yarns—are slow. Goods are moving in just so-so fashion and there seems to be little willingness to forecast improvement. Cotton is no better off and in fact might be said to be in a poorer position than wool, because dropping raw quotations affected the demand for finished goods. Hides and skins are doing fairly well from the standpoint of firm prices but the market is rather quiet. Some sunshine is seen in reports that leather prices are well maintained despite a lackadaisical buying interest on the part of consumers.

• • •

Whenever stock prices indulge in one of their periodic smashes and news on which to hang the blame is not readily available financial observers begin a still hunt for a reason. It is on now. Several "new" possibilities have already been unearthed. Of them all only one seems worthy of comment. And that is the uncovering of inside selling revealed in the summary released by the securities and exchange commission. During the month of July many officers and directors of large corporations liquidated some of their personal holdings. With this as a start it does not take the bearishly inclined very long to work up a bearish argument to the effect that such caution suggests a sharp spurt in fall business is unlikely.

• • •

For our part the above argument could mean the straightaway climb of stock prices in July was sold by insiders because values were too far ahead of prospects. That was bearish on stocks at the time, but it certainly is not a valid excuse for blasting the business outlook now. And we think our deduction more reasonable if anything on that point. Finally the obvious fact that the far eastern situation is a veritable tinder box for all the important nations of the world can not be put one side lightly.

• • •

On a purely technical basis the market, while most disappointing, has not as yet given a bear market signal. And it will not, according to the reasoning of Dow theorists until the industrial group slips under its June 14 low of 165.51 by a decisive margin. All three major groups have been declining now for some time and while the action of rails is disconcerting in that a minimum under that of June 28 has been set, it must be admitted that the present phase of the decline has all the earmarks of exhaustion on the downside. It is entirely possible in this writer's view that by the time the first editions carrying this column are on the street a rally will have begun.

• • •

The indications of downside exhaustion are not confined to rails alone. The other two, industrials and utilities, also look thoroughly sold out. On the side of buying we hear from several usually well informed sources that purchases are now being made and that when a turn does come there may be just as acute a shortage of offerings as there has recently been of bids.

Air-Conditioned Auto Likely Soon

After experiments by both Nash and Kelvinator divisions, Nash Motors is expected to present an air-conditioned automobile for the 1938 market. Still a closely guarded secret as to operation, company officials say the temperature of the inside of the automobile will be controlled from the panel instrument board.

The company will spend $2,000,000 in improvements to its body plant here and motor plants in Racine and Kenosha.

STOCKS Drift LOWER

MANY ISSUES HIT BOTTOM

New York, Sept. 2—Stock market leaders swung downward today but encountered sufficient support to avert a rout. Volume appeared on selling flurries and dried up appreciably on rallies. Extreme losses running to 3 or more points were pared in some cases near the fourth hour. Many issues hit bottom for the year.

Bonds too were inclined to give ground. Commodities displayed reviving tendencies, with grain and cotton futures improving.

CASE OFF 7 POINTS

J. I. Case dropped 7 points and Allied Chemical 4 at the worst. Prominent with lesser reversals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, Wheeling Steel, Crucible, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson Motors, International Harvester, Deere, Caterpillar Tractor, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Continental Oil, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, St. Joseph Lead, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pullman, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, American Locomotive, Allis Chalmers, Du Pont, Loew's and Spiegel Inc. Some of these did better later.

Resistant were Western Union, Southern Pacific, International Telephone, Zenith Radio, Pennsylvania and Southern Railway.

Signing of the sugar quota bill helped shares in this department. Advances were recorded for South Porto Rico, Fajardo, Manati preferred, American Crystal and Cuban-American. Sugar futures also exhibited strength.

TIMELY ITEMS

While the atmosphere was thin in the boardrooms before the opening, traders found a few crumbs of comfort in overnight items.

Followers of carrier issues studied the address of Interstate Commerce Commissioner Lee at Salt Lake City in which he warned shippers "they must be prepared to accept higher freight charges when these are necessary to maintain adequate rail transportation."

Helpful also were estimates the Bell System's station gains for August probably were well over the 22,600 net advance in July. Earnings of the major communications corporations were said to be averaging better than for any time since 1930.

The Bank of France cut its discount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. The rate was reduced from 5 to 4 per cent August 3. At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the franc was off [illegible] of a cent at 3.72⅝ cents. Sterling was down 3-16 of a cent at $4.95 7-16.

McKeesport

McKeesport Tin Plate Co. declared a dividend of 60 cents, payable October 1 to stock of record September 15.

SUGAR Quotas FIXED

BEET, CANE RECEIVE BULK

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Continental cane and beet sugar producing areas received the bulk of increases in this year's sugar quota ordered today by Secretary Wallace under the new sugar legislation.

Wallace increased the 1937 quotas 360,063 tons to a total of 7,042,733 under the new legislation and then awarded 191,914 of the increase to beet and cane areas within the United States.

The increases over previously announced 1937 quotas for various supply sources and their new total quotas are:

Continental beet, 19,785 tons to 1,603,361; Continental cane, 172,129 to 412,793; Hawaii, 11,866 to 988,551; Puerto Rico, 9446 to 849,954; Virgin Islands, 3934 to 9206; Philippine Islands, 49,362 to 1,085,364; Cuba, 93,415 to 2,014,548; foreign countries other than Cuba, 1990 to 27,610.

NEW REGULATIONS

The new regulations reduced by 17,988 tons the amount of refined or direct consumption sugar that Cuba may supply. AAA officials said this was required under limitations set by Congress.

The refined quotas for other offshore areas were unchanged at 80,214 tons for the Philippines, 126,033 for Puerto Rico and 29,616 for Hawaii.

Although the quotas for full-duty countries, foreign supply sources other than Cuba, were increased 1990 tons, AAA spokesmen said this increase would not be split among various nations. It was merely added to an unallotted reserve.

The initial 1937 quotas established last January under the Jones-Costigan act fixed total quotas at 6,682,670 tons. The final 1936 quotas aggregated 6,812,687 tons.

All values are expressed in short tons, raw value.

Misinterpretation Causes Boom In London

London, Sept. 2 (INS)—Misinterpretation of Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's "offer" to withdraw Japan's expeditionary force from China caused a momentary boom on the London market today.

International issues soared after morning-long idleness.

Further study of Hirota's statement, however, indicated there was no real reason to hope for early alleviation of the Far Eastern crisis.

Buys Cox Stock For Jordan Marsh

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 2 (AP)—Edward J. Pendergast, representing the Jordan Marsh Company, today purchased the entire merchandise stock of the Charles H. Cox Corporation of New Bedford at public auction for $34,500. The stock was valued by retailers here at "between $80,000 and $100,000."

To Fix Import Quota on Chassis

Canberra, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Australian government today decided to fix the import quota on United States and Canadian automobile chassis for 1939-40 at the same level as for the year ending next April.

The total figure was set at about 38,000 chassis, of which 27,000 will be admitted from the United States.

Iron, Steel Industry Booming

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—The world's iron and steel industries are in the midst of "the greatest peace-time boom ever experienced," the September letter of the National City Bank of New York said today.

"If the current rate of activity continues, the world steel mills this year may turn out 140,000,000 tons of steel," the letter predicted, "which would exceed the previous peak outputs of around 120,000,000 each in 1929 and 1936 and dwarf the pre-war output which during the 1909-13 period averaged only about 64,000,000 tons.

"The primary cause of this outburst of activity is the fact that there has been little expansion of steel-making activity in the last seven years, and in that time the demand for new and improved industrial equipment has greatly increased. The higher wage-scales in all countries have offered more inducements to more economical utilization of man-power."

• • •

During August, the letter said: "The general volume of production and trade has been maintained at a relatively high level" and business men "look forward to a good volume of trade activity in the fall, but are conducting their affairs conservatively and there is little evidence of the boom psychology prevalent at this time a year ago."

The most favorable factor in the business outlook, the bank believes, is the situation in agriculture.

"Nature has yielded bountiful crops and notwithstanding the adjustment of prices to larger production, financial returns to the farm population promise to be excellent.

"The crops mean new wealth, and prosperity in the farm areas on the basis of plenty instead of scarcity. Provided the products the farmer buys are not advanced too rapidly in price, the farmer gains and has his purchasing power increased, and the urban worker gains also—through the lower cost of food. This is a far sounder foundation for business than the distribution of hundreds of millions of dollars in a soldiers' bonus widely acclaimed as a business stimulant a year ago."

• • •

With the farm outlook more promising than for some years "it might be supposed that the market would be moving forward enthusiastically," the letter continued, "whereas, actually, speculative interest has been slack and prices on the stock exchange have declined, more, however, from lack of demand than from any important volume of selling.

"Apparently, the business community has been more impressed with the continuing uncertainties, political and otherwise, including the possible repercussions of the tragic conflict in the Far East; and undeniably, trade reports have not been up to expectations in a good many lines."

U. S. Deficit Shows $3,000,000 Increase

Washington, Sept. 2 (INS)—The government concluded the second month of the 1938 fiscal year with a deficit of $352,144,859, an increase of $3,000,000 over the same period a year ago, Treasury statistics revealed today.

General governmental expenditures amounted to $846,972,674, an increase of about $113,000,000. Relief costs, however, so far this fiscal year were $373,413,222, a decline of $200,000,000.

The public debt at present stands at an all-time record high of $37,045,040,598. At this date a year ago the debt was $33,380,468,640.

The Brighter Side

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

"My first appearance in this man's town was twenty-five years ago in an act called 'A malange of songs, dances and stories,'" said Mr. Lou Holtz. "Say, melange means stink, doesn't it?"

Damon Runyon

We said we thought not. We said we were not prepared at the moment, there in Mr. Dinty Moore's restaurant, where there was no dictionary handy, to define melange, but we were pretty sure it did not mean stink.

"Is that so?" said Mr. Holtz, with interest. "I always thought it meant stink. I have gone along for years under the impression that my first act was the most perfectly titled act ever produced. Well, Well, Well! And melange doesn't mean stink, after all? But my first act did, at that."

Mr. Holtz is a slim, trim, dapper chap, slightly under medium height. It has long been our opinion that he is one of the greatest of our stage comedians. He is naturally a funny man, and funny without mechanics, which is something you cannot say for many of our comedians.

A REAL COMEDIAN

The true comedian is the rarest of rarities on stage and screen. There are not to exceed a dozen true comedians in this country, and there never are more than a dozen in any one generation. We think Mr. Holtz ranks among the first five of his day, which is today.

He has just turned 43, and he was telling us that life has begun for him since his last birthday, a slight exaggeration for life has been going on for Mr. Holtz for quite a spell.

But he recently returned from a highly successful engagement in England, and is back only a few days from a tremendous run in a Chicago night club, and is now headed for the Pacific Coast with a long deferred screen career in prospect, so he is feeling pretty good.

Mr. Holtz is great company off the stage. He likes to sit around tables with Broadway cronies, and gas. He is a good story teller, and he waits his turn. He is interested in everything—sports, the news of the day, and his neighbors' affairs. He does not mind the conversation being on something other than himself. Mr. Holtz assays very little of ham.

WON $70,000 STAKE

He is cocksure of himself on that rostrum, but not at all conceited off. He does not chase the ladies away from him, but he is largely a man's man. He loves to play cards for high takes, and he gambles big on the horses. He is an inordinate baseball fan. He used to be quite a fellow for the dice, and once, in the days of the big floating crap games in New York, he won $70,000, before anyone realized he was even in the game.

The stakes were so high in those days that Mr. Holtz' modest bets of a couple of thousand a belt scarcely entitled him to a good post position. He stood on the outskirts, sticking his hand in between the high shots to get his money down.

Mr. Holtz started his theatrical career as a "nigger singer" in cafes out around San Francisico when he was sixteen or seventeen. Nearly all cafe singers were called "nigger singers" in those days out there, because of the type of songs they used.

AIDED BY ELSIE JANIS

His mother ran a store near the Presidio, catering largely to the soldiers at that army post. The store was known as Mother Holtz', and many a man who soldiered on San Francisco Bay will remember it. Mr. Holtz, at the tender age of six, used to tend store for his mother.

Elsie Janis "caught" his singing act in a beach resort, and brought him to New York in that "melange," of which Mr. Holtz speaks. She produced it herself, and besides Mr. Holtz, had a chap named Val Harris and Miss Rita Boland in the act.

Mr. Holtz afterwards married Miss Boland. The marriage did not click, and Mr. Holtz has never tried it again, devoting himself to his mother. He thinks she is the greatest woman in the world. She thinks he is the greater actor, and who is Mr. Holtz to argue with his own mother?

They Chop Suey In China Now

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

General Smedley Butler says we should get out of China, and is in Buffalo to prove it.

That advice makes the finest road directions we have heard in some time. But we happen to have two thousand million dollars invested in China, and that ain't hay.

Money to Loan

LOANS
REDUCED COST

Household's new 3-2-1 rate means this—On the first $100 of any loan the monthly rate is 3% per month—on the next $100 or part thereof the rate reduces to 2%—and on the next $100 or part thereof the rate reduces still further to 1%.

This is the lowest rate Household has ever offered in Massachusetts.

Peace, Not War!

THE bombing of the American refugee ship President Hoover in Chinese waters, serious as it is, will not and should not involve the United States in a war we are doing our level best to avoid.

The incident proves to us the extreme peril of the situation as it affects us. It is a situation that is probably going to get a lot worse before it gets any better.

Just what we CAN do or SHOULD do about it is a problem to which our Government must devote the closest attention.

Certainly we want adequate protection for our people in China and their property. And, as a peaceful and friendly nation, we ought to have that protection without even considering the necessity of fighting for it.

The bombing of the President Hoover and the wounding of Americans aboard the vessel was an inexcusable violation of our rights.

So was the shelling of the American cruiser Augusta and the killing of a member of her crew.

But these events are not stirring up any war spirit in the United States. They do not call for us to move our Army and Navy, bag and baggage, into the war zone.

Instead, they DO CALL for us to make sure that every step we take in this grave emergency is not toward war, but TOWARD PEACE.

A Grave Responsibility

A NEW Massachusetts law, now in effect, gives District Courts power to decide guilt or innocence in fifty additional crimes and imposes a grave responsibility on the judges of those courts.

The statute's purpose is to relieve the congestion in the higher courts by providing speedier and cheaper trials.

In theory, the law is a good one. In practice, however, it can be anything but good.

The cause for worry results from the fact that the limit of sentence which can be imposed by our District Courts is two and a half years in a jail or house of correction.

Therefore, a man charged with manslaughter would get only that punishment were he convicted in District Court.

But were he tried and convicted in Superior Court, he could get TWENTY YEARS IN STATE PRISON.

And the depraved man who tried to commit rape could get off with the same two and a half years in District Court, though in Superior Court he might go to State Prison FOR LIFE.

Similar "escapes" are provided for such crimes as assault with intent to murder, attempts to kill by poisoning, kidnaping, embezzlement, forgery, perjury, burglary and a host of other offenses.

Let them accept jurisdiction in cases where the maximum punishment should not be more than two and a half years in a jail.

But when such a sentence is ridiculous in the light of the evidence, let them hold the accused parties for higher courts that have the power to impose ADEQUATE PENALTIES.

Keep Out the Politicians

THE State Unemployment Compensation Commission's plan to hire 300 clerks and investigators interests both those who hope to get jobs and those who will pay the bill.

Forty-six branch offices will be opened in various parts of the State to augment the work of the Boston central office. Each will have a "manager," plus a staff of assistants.

Perhaps all this contemplated clerical and statistical work is necessary. If it is, the army of new employes will have to be hired.

But will the hiring stop there? That is the big question.

Will the hiring go on for years until a large part of the money that the working population of Massachusetts is paying for unemployment compensation flows into the pockets of political hangers-on? That is an even bigger question.

Fresh in our memory is the WPA. This was supposed to aid only those who could not find jobs. What happened is history. The needy received $55 a month, often less. Politicians got $250 a month, sometimes more. And not a few of the choicest "plums" went to aliens!

Unemployment compensation should exist solely for the benefit of the men and women out of whose pay envelopes money is being taken each week. It ought not to be a life-long pension for politicians and their friends.

The time to see that those who pay the bill receive ALL THE MONEY that belongs to them is NOW.

The Best Ships Afloat

GOOD ships will be the rule in the new American Merchant Marine, according to Chairman Joseph Kennedy of the Maritime Commission.

To qualify for government subsidies, shipbuilders must make their craft as fireproof and as safe in every other respect as modern engineering can make them.

We note, too, that lessons learned from past experiences with unsafe ships are not to be ignored.

New ships must conform to standards fixed by the Senate Safety-at-Sea Committee, which, under Senator Copeland, of New York, conducted exhaustive studies of the Morro Castle, Mohawk and other marine disasters.

The Maritime Commission is moving steadily toward its goal, which is to give the United States a new merchant fleet of 300 ships.

That they will be the SAFEST as well as the NEWEST ships afloat is additional evidence of the thoroughly competent and permanent job the commission is doing.

Safe Flying in Dense Fog

SAFE landings for airplanes in dense fogs and total darkness are reputedly assured by War Department experiments, the results of which will soon be available to commercial aviation.

This will mean that the heart-stopping tragedy of passenger-bearing airplanes stranded in midair will be a thing of the past.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 2.—Every trained New York detective and those wise to the deceits of Broadway smile at the figure so often described by writers as "a shifty-eyed crook." There is a general belief that the guilty cannot look one in the eye. The bigger the crook, the steadier his gaze as a rule.

O. O. McIntyre

Long ago Charles Dickens expressed a truth with: "There is a mistaken belief about bad men being unable to look you in the face. Don't trust the idea. Dishonesty will stare honesty out of countenance any day in the week if there is anything to be gained by it."

Some of the shyest and gentlest men I have ever known, men who have a lifetime of honesty and purpose and ideals behind them, are unable to look squarely into the eyes of their most intimate friends.

I knew a banker whose gaze was frank and open. He was indicted and missed prison by an eyelash.

Maeterlinck confessed he could not look his own mother squarely in the eye. Along Broadway the boys who slap you on the back so heartily can not only look you directly in the eye but can, if they so desire, lift your wallet while doing so.

Don Marquis lies propped up in bed at Forest Hills looking out at the trees. His convalescence has been tedious, but steadily he improves. He likes company, but can say only a few words. Someone asked him if he thought up poems as he lay there, imprisoned, but he looked sad and the visitor wished he hadn't.

His sister has made marionettes of the characters of his famous poem, Noah, Jonah and Captain John Smith.

Every club still has in its membership one or two of that rarity, a gentleman of the old school, so called. Urbanity, politeness, affability and courtesy are amenities disappearing from social life.

The late Vivian Burnett, reputedly the original of his mother's famous novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," had such manners. His contacts were made with smiles and cheerfulness, his face was always lighted up. I doubt if any of his fellows ever caught him in an ill humor. His was the humor without barb and his personality had charm.

He had eternal youth and his death, trying to save others on a yacht, was noble. A truly gentle soul.

Dick Simons of the publishing firm, is such an authority on amateur photography he is publishing a book on the subject. He is also cheer leader of an amateur crowd of photogs. On a recent stunt excursion of celebrities, a magazine lent Dick a $500 camera. He took about 30 candid shots.

Reflection: My rule eating out is that if there's anything on the bill of fare that I've never eaten before, I try it for pure gastronomic experience and education. But in years of experimenting I've never found anything so satisfactory as the dishes I loved when a boy—fried mush, thin cut round steaks, deep dish apple pie with thick cream, etc.

All talk of taste in eating is bosh. We are made so that we love the things that in youth gave us greatest pleasure and thrill and all the King's stewards and cooks cannot awaken those emotions. To speak of any place where you get the best anything is sheer nonsense.

Oh, Sherman Billingsley, your monicker
Could not be nobler or euphonicker
Its mouthful splendor has a quality
Too lush for merely Stork Club jollity.
Oh, Sherman Billingsley, I see you larger
Looming, a major general on a charger.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

How much of her pay check should a working girl—or a working boy—give to the family?

That may not be Front Page News to you, but it is to thousands of youngsters who read this column, and their more or less irate moms and dads.

Elsie Robinson

The parents who raised Rosie and Bob to working age—

Or the youngsters who are holding down the jobs?

Mrs. Evans, for instance, would much like to know. Here's her letter—a score like it in every mail—

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"I am a widow and dependent on my daughter, Alice, for support. She makes $25 a week working downtown, and brings it all home to me. Every other week I give her $10.

"I also give her carfare and money for lunches, which usually comes to around $2.10 per week. She has $[illegible] taken out of her monthly wages for insurance, and pays $2.25 for stock every week. I keep the rest.

ISN'T SATISFIED

"That makes about $113 which she earns per month—out of which she gives about $12 for stock and insurance, spends about $9 for lunches and carfare, $20 for clothes, dentist and doctor bills and amusements while I keep the remaining $72.

"Now she is getting so she isn't satisfied. She claims she is giving me too much money. She says I ought to give her back more than $20 a month and that she doesn't have enough to buy decent clothes for herself.

"Which one of us is right? Shouldn't she be able to manage on what I give her? And haven't I a right to her support?

"Mrs. Anna Evans."

IS IT YOUR PROBLEM?

Or there's Carl—hundreds of Carls. Carl gets a little fatter split than Alice—but he also gets a fatter envelope. Like her he has nothing left after he has paid his monthly installment on the new blue suit.

"I'm twenty-one," says Carl, "and I'd like a future like other fellows, but what can I do when my mother and father hang on to almost all I earn? They are old country people and they think I ought to help carry the family expenses.

"Is it my fault if my father went ahead and had six children without being able to afford them? And how can I ever save enough to have a family of my own if I have to support his?

"Don't you think a fellow does enough if he pays for board and lodging at home, as he would have to anywhere else?

"Carl Johnson."

Well—do you or don't you?

If it were YOUR problem, what would your answer be?

The Oxford Movement

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Recently in Japan the Oxford Group movement gave an "international house party" attended by more than 400 persons, many of them prominent and influential in the Orient.

Edwin C. Hill

Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, is a follower of this movement, as are many leaders in public life, both in China and Japan. Its members are contending earnestly in many nations against war, turmoil and decadence. They believe that only by Christian regeneration can the world be saved.

This movement, founded by Dr. Frank Buchman, rotund little Pennsylvania Dutch preacher, after seeing a vision in a roadside chapel in England, offers a type of evangelism which, so far as this writer knows, is utterly unique in the history of such endeavors.

It proposes to rebuild human society by selecting the strongest and soundest timbers from the moral wreckage, rather than the splintered fragments.

Within the last ten years the movement has gained amazing momentum, recruiting its members and leaders from many faiths. Not only in the field of international relations, but in the zone of labor conflict, in fact in all zones of social danger and unrest, it is working diligently.

HUMANITY THE GOAL

The basic social dilemma always has been the question as to whether humane people could become powerful, or whether powerful people could become humane. An intelligent young disciple of the Oxford Group recently explained to me why their evangelism concentrated on the latter alternative.

"We believe," he said, "that our effort to rally the enlightened spiritual forces of the world represents the only possible defense against the tragic and complete ruin of our present civilization. We further believe that effective evangelism in the world today should be in accord with reason and scientific progress.

"Every declaration of modern biology and genetics emphasizes the fact that enlightened social controls must be in the hands of those who not only are men of good will but who are socially intelligent.

"If you and I start a public campaign for any purpose whatever, the first thing we do is to enlist persons of influence, with their names on our letterhead.

"We do not assert for an instant that the soul of the richest or most powerful man in the world weighs any more in the scales of divinity than that of the humblest man on earth.

"But we do believe that the exigency of these times makes it imperative that the strong and successful shall be mobilized to attain the true Christian goal of peace and world brotherhood."

The Oxford Group movement, staging genteel parties in which are utilized the ancient psychological values of confession, has been a target for irreverent and skeptical comment. Personally, I believe these days in which we live are too deadly serious for any disparagement of earnest and unselfish efforts to stave off war and social conflict.

When they recruit 400 men of many nations, Chinese and Japanese among them, in an effort to bring peace, I say more power to them, whether the setting is a house party or the temple of an ancient ritual.

CHILDREN OF DESTINY

The hosts of righteousness may yet prevail, but today guns roar in China. There is a growing belief in the Far East that the Japanese intend to place again on the ancient Manchu throne the "boy emperor," Henry Pu-yi, whom they abducted in 1923 and established as "ruler" of Manchukuo in 1932. It seems to be something like moving the queen bee around to make the best swarm.

In 1922 Henry Pu-yi, "Son of Heaven," then seventeen, was married to Kuo Chin-si, a bright bit of lovely cloisonne in the junk heap of China. She was 14. Chinese war lords helped oust them and deliver them to Japan. The art treasures of their ancestors were stolen.

The two charming mannikins were happy to be free from the responsibilities of ruling. Their greatest treasure was a small American phonograph.

Then, bewildered, serving some Oriental symbolism elusive to western minds, they were moved through an august ritual and a gala display which made them puppet rulers of a puppet state.

Little Kuo Chin-si could have no children, so Henry had to take another No. 1 wife. He is a stalwart young man educated by an English tutor, a good student with ideas of his own, but driven by winds of destiny, powerless to resist.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

I was present the day that Peter Pan entertained the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

The place was the Empire Theater on Broadway, when Maude Adams, who has just announced that she will become professor of drama at Stephens College, Missouri, was playing a Peter Pan matinee.

A long stream of hansom cabs drew up in front of the theater. Out of the first one stepped a man dressed in duck-white. He had an unusual head of curly gray hair and a long gray handlebar mustache.

They ranged themselves behind the leonine gray head. He led the children down the long lobby of the theater, and applying an invisible fife to his lips and executing mock dance-steps (the children also dancing), the Pied Piper—

"TO BLOW THE PIPE HIS
AND GREEN AND BLUE HIS SHARP-EYES TWINKLED."

He led them into the never-never land of Peter Pan, Wendy and Captain Hook.

The Pied Piper was—of course!—Mark Twain.

Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, before a rally in Berlin of 60,000 foreign-resident Germans, including many Americans, practically defied any nation to bar Nazi activities on their home grounds. He even went so far as to use the words "we will not tolerate."

Now this would be quite all right if the Nazis in Germany will allow American groups to hold picnics glorifying Thomas Jefferson and American individualism and to organize for the spread of those doctrines of religious liberty peculiar to America on THEIR home grounds.

But you know what would happen in Germany to such groups of Americans?

Precisely what would happen in Soviet Russia to an American who should stand at the tomb of Lenin and shout: "Long live the competitive capitalistic system of America!"

Rudyard Kipling's famous line, "EAST IS EAST AND WEST IS WEST, AND NEVER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET," is not to the liking of Professor Sinclair, of the University of Hawaii. During his recent visit to New York he said that we have much to learn from Asia in arts, literature and philosophy.

As a matter of fact, we are indebted to the Orient for most of our knowledge of painting and many of the arts. Most of our philosophy is a rehash of Hindu, Persian and Chinese wisdom. Printing was first invented in China. The first poets were the Asiatics, particularly the Hebrews, the Persians and the Arabians.

But, for all that East IS East and West IS West, as Kipling said—because the West is dynamic and optimistic, while the East is static and pessimistic. And these divisions between East and West are sharper today than they ever have been.

The writers of the new Stalin O. K.'d "History of the Soviet Union" have received premiums of 75,000 rubles. This "history" is just another instance of the degradation to which writers are reduced in Communist Russia. If they had written a true history of the last 20 years in Stalin's far-flung rifle-range their families would never have seen them again.

This "history," on orders from Robespierre Stalin, praises Peter the Great to the skies. Naturally. Peter the Great, huge, drunken, sadistic brute, used to have peasants shot in bunches to entertain his guests, practised every kind of torture on his "Trotskyist" spies, and is described by Macaulay as having gone to a European court "LADEN DOWN WITH JEWELS AND LICE."

Nice man! Nice "history!"

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Seven hundred years ago, Genghis Khan and his Mongol horde rode out of the Gobi Desert and, after several attempts, succeeded in the conquest of northern China. He was warned then by a Chinese prince:

"Thou hast conquered a great empire in the saddle. Thou canst not govern it so."

If Japan is successful in the present undeclared war against China, she will face the same problem. She may be able to conquer China, but keeping the Chinese conquered will be an entirely different proposition.

A Japanese commander says "one of our soldiers is equivalent to seven of the Chinese because of our superior equipment, training and staff work." But there are factors other than armaments and armed forces and strategy in modern war. There are ECONOMIC as well as military weapons. The ability to absorb punishment must be considered as well as the ability to inflict damage. There are so many Chinese, Japan might wear herself out financially just slaughtering them.

Announcement by Chinese businessmen in Shanghai that China has cancelled contracts for nearly 142 million dollars' worth of Japanese goods shows the Chinese have ECONOMIC weapons and know how to use them.

The United States and Great Britain both have protested to Japan against continuance of the war in China. Any extensive cancellation of American or British orders for Japanese goods would make these protests effective.

It won't take many more incidents like the wounding of the British ambassador by machine gun fire from a Japanese plane to bring more than a diplomatic protest from Great Britain.

While the last Congress was "plugging loopholes" in present federal tax laws it was widening another hole already big enough to drive a truck through.

The Housing Bill, authorizing issuance of one-half billion dollars of new bonds carried a provision that "such obligations shall be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation (except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes) now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any state, county, municipality or local taxing authority."

There is one phase of the financial program, and it is about the only one, to which the Administration can point with pride. That is its success in holding down interest charges on the national debt while that debt was mounting to unprecedented heights.

It is only because of tax exemptions granted on money loaned to the taxspenders that interest rates have been kept so low. The more oppressive tax burdens become, the more valuable these tax exemptions are to investors.

But tax exemptions attaching to government bonds are wrong because they give the most tax relief to those who least need it.

Heavier and heavier is the debt hanging over the heads of the American people. On August 23, the national debt reached another new all-time high—$36,964,477,636. Too few people have any idea about the enormity of this debt. They haven't felt it yet.

Thus far we have just been borrowing but paying back nothing. When the paying back starts it will be too late then to complain about the wild spending responsible for much of the debt.

An Omaha youth couldn't get a WPA job because he was single. He found a girl who was willing to help remedy that situation. She was only 14 but her mother consented to the marriage.

But that is what comes of this policy of encouraging people to believe the government will take of everybody.
